Another Billion Boost in Taxes Appears Probable

Will Be Added to Five Billion Increase Already Projected

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—A new $1,000,000,000 annual increase in taxes may be proposed, it was reported today, as companion legislation to the projected $5,000,000,000 boost in national defense outlays.

President Roosevelt is expected to send a special message to Congress by the middle of the week asking for $4,000,000,000 in appropriations and contract authorizations for the

Col. McCormick Would Put CCC Boys and WPA Workers in the Army

CHICAGO, July 7 (AP)—Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, tonight termed a "desperate remedy" a "last resort" and urged that CCC boys and WPA workers be called into the army and national guard if volunteers should lag.

"We have plenty of men for our mobile army if we stop supporting them in idleness," he asserted in a radio speech.

He said the National Guard was less prepared than the regular army and that supplies for maneuvers of the present forces would not be ready before August.

"Would it not then," he added, "be a tragic blunder to call away from their occupations millions of civilians whom we cannot clothe

Germans Subject England to Wave Of Bomb Attacks

Nazi Planes Spend All Day Raiding Parts of British Isles

SPECTACULAR BATTLES SEEN BY THOUSANDS

British Believed To Have Continued Raids upon Germany

By The Associated Press
LONDON, July 8 — (Monday) — Thousands of Englishmen who sought peace and quiet on weekend jaunts to the countryside found instead that they were unbidden witnesses to a deadly phase of the battle for England—a daylong series of German bombing raids that lasted through Sunday until early today.

Fascinated spectators felt the earth shake with the blasts of high explosives and delayed-fuse bombs which the Germans showered down on widespread areas. They cheered to the echo as British fighter planes and anti-aircraft guns shot down at least four of the enemy in flames that were quickly extinguished off the southeast coast.

At least five persons, including a policeman, were killed by the German bombs, and a number suffered injuries. Homes were splintered, and the delayed-action missiles added a new peril.

Spectacular Air Battles
The German planes penetrated the English coastal defenses in small groups, then split up into smaller units of three or four and engaged in spectacular dogfights with British pilots.

The sky was starry with vivid flashes of gunfire. The noise of bombs and anti-aircraft cannon provided a steady undertone for the shriller crack of machine guns and the high whine of racing motors and screaming struts.

Indicating that the British were not letting these German blows go unanswered in kind, the German radio stations at Hamburg and Bremen suddenly went silent Sunday night—as they do when British bombers drew near.

Planes over Gibraltar
At heavily-fortified Gibraltar and the Mediterranean naval base of Malta other enemy planes also met heavy anti-aircraft fire. A lone

1,600 Americans Leave Ireland To Escape War Peril

Many Mishaps Caused as They Embark on Liner Washington

GALWAY, Ireland, July 7 (AP)—Approximately 1,600 Americans fleeing the possibility of German invasion of the British Isles sailed for home today aboard the United States liner Washington.

The liner weighed anchor at 6:45 a. m. (12:45 a. m. E. S. T.) but was delayed by fog in making her way down Galway bay and did not leave Irish waters until 3 p. m.

Much confusion marked the sailing. A number of trunks were lost. Many passengers were without a change of apparel. Most of the lost luggage was believed mislaid in Euston station in London.

There was much grumbling among the passengers, especially about the lack of facilities in Galway after they were rushed there far ahead of schedule because of reports that the Washington would sail Friday night. Many found no housing accommodations and no chance of boarding the liner because of tidal conditions. The passengers were transported to the ship in tenders.

Considerable arms, including several sawed-off shotguns were confiscated from luggage. A dozen assorted weapons were taken from one theatrical troupe. Two shot-

100 Slain, Thousands Injured in Mexico, 2 American Casualties

Election Day Riots Take Heavy Toll in Larger Cities; Rifles and Machine Guns Used

By BEN F. MEYER

MEXICO CITY, July 7 (AP)—Mexico counted 100 or more slain and thousands injured, including two seriously wounded United States citizens, as rival political factions matched gunfire with each other and with soldiers and police today in the blazing, riotous climax to a bitter presidential campaign.

While the casualties mounted, with the greatest number in Mexico City itself, the count of ballots will not be made until next Thursday. It then remains for the government to decide whether results will be announced before the official figures are presented to the Congress that meets Sept. 1.

Both General Avila Camacho, the candidate backed by the present administration, and his rival, General Juan Andreu Almazan, claimed certain victory while their followers did bloody battle around the polling places.

Toll May Go Higher
The estimate of more than 100 dead came from General Almazan. Mexico City police said a score of persons died and 100 were injured in this capital alone, and the toll

Youth Congress Refuses To Go on Record against Russ Dictatorship

LAKE GENEVA, Wis., July 7 (AP)—The American Youth Congress in its final session today squelched a proposal to condemn "political dictatorship" in Russia.

The proposal was contained in a resolution by Franklin Kramer, Elgin, Ill., chairman of the University of Wisconsin all-campus peace federation, which read:

"Because dictatorship means the loss of civil liberties we are determined that our government shall never be led by a war dictator as are England and France, or a political dictator as are Germany, Italy, Japan, Russia and Franco-Spain. Therefore be it resolved that this Congress go on record condemning all dictatorship."

Kramer was the only speaker in favor of his resolution. Opposing speakers dwelt almost entirely on their objections to inclusion of Russia in the condemnation. Carl Ross, national secretary of the Young Communists League, said he believed Russia "is a democracy" and was "willing to cooperate with America to stop this (European) war."

Kramer's resolution was voted down overwhelmingly, with only eight or ten hands raised for it. Kramer said "the vast majority in America don't want a Communist government any more than they want a Fascist one."

The congress then passed, unanimously, a reaffirmation of last year's stand on dictatorship which stated devotion to true democracy and "opposition to all forms of dictatorship regardless of whether Communist, Fascist, Nazi or any other type." This measure, submitted by the resolutions committee, mentioned no countries by name.

Fifth Columnists Great Factor in Defeat of France

Proved More Effective than in Any Previous War, Experts Say

GERMAN COMMAND KEPT INFORMED OF SITUATION

Nazi Bombers Guided by Radio to Their Objectives

By WILLIAM H. MCGAFFIN

Bilbao, Spain, July 7 (AP)—Military experts here say that one of the greatest single factors in the defeat of France was a Nazi "Fifth Column" attack more efficient than ever seen in any previous war.

This "assault from within" was described as developed along three major lines:

1. Guiding German bombers to their objectives;
2. Keeping the German high command informed by small, isolated wireless transmitters;
3. Harassing French morale and organization.

Two Americans who have just arrived in Bilbao said they saw flames shoot up during the German aerial bombardment of Le Havre and Bordeaux outlining areas to be raided within those French ports.

The Americans, who had entire to various French official circles, said an important French official was executed the day after the bombardment of Bordeaux. Several scores were killed or wounded and a number of buildings in the heart of the city were demolished during the attack.

As an example of the contacts maintained with the German command by a little band of operators with wireless transmitters, the Americans repeated a story told by French soldiers on their return from the northern battlefields.

Radio Tips Nazis
According to this story, loudspeakers in the German lines announced the names and numbers of French regiments which were coming up as reserves three days before the French soldiers at the front knew the facts themselves.

Italian Sea, Land and Air Bases Heavily Bombed

By The Associated Press

CAIRO, Egypt, July 7 (AP)—Successful demobilization of the French East Mediterranean fleet and increasing aerial pounding of Italian land, sea and air bases in the Mediterranean and North Africa were reported today by the British.

The operations over the week end were aimed at the goal Prime Minister Churchill set up for the Royal navy and air force when he promised common: "We shall take the necessary steps to maintain command of the Mediterranean."

Since last Friday, the British middle east command reported, the Royal Air Force has engaged in these activities:

Over land—scored direct bomb hits on two hangars and other buildings at Catania, Sicily, starting fires that could be seen twenty miles; smashed two grounded planes and ignited two oil tanks at Zula, on the Red Sea coast of Eritrea; bombed and machine gunned troops at Bardia, Italian East Africa.

Over sea—Forced two large transports aground, seriously damaged another; damaged and probably sank either a destroyer or a submarine, and left two smaller ships "in difficulty" off

French Warplanes Join Axis Fleets, Bomb Gibraltar

Two Squadrons, Grounded by Armistice, Are Again in Action

LALINEA, Spain, July 7 (AP)—Planes believed to have been French heavily bombed Gibraltar again Sunday morning and apparently struck one destroyer in the bay.

GRENOBLE, France, July 7 (AP)—Two French air squadrons, disarmed by the armistice, have been re-armed and have joined German-Italian squadrons in attacks on British Gibraltar, the French navy ministry disclosed today.

Its communiqué, published in Le Petit Dauphinois, said the French squadrons and axis planes had bombed British warships in Gibraltar harbor, including some that attacked the French fleet at Mers El-Kebir July 3.

"At least one large British warship" was hit, it said.

The same newspaper published a dispatch declaring that French losses in the Mers El-Kebir action, taken by the British to prevent delivery of France's surrendered fleet to Germany and Italy, were believed to total 1,600 dead, missing and wounded.

There were only 200 survivors from the battleship Bretagne, and 200 were killed or missing and 150 were wounded aboard the battleship.

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—A large on his previous Senate criticism of the appointments, both life-long Republicans.

Reach "Complete Agreement" on Continuation of Struggle, To Construct a "New Europe"

By The Associated Press
The plight of England apparently was discussed at a meeting in Berlin yesterday (Sunday) by the policy-makers of Germany and Italy.

The conference between Germany's Fuehrer Adolf Hitler and Italy's Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano was held in Berlin while German planes raided Britain anew and Italian and British bombs thundered destruction on two continents.

The rattle of gunfire and the screams of wounded and dying penetrated as well to the western hemisphere, where Mexico was choosing a new president amid a blood-bath of election day battles. The votes will not be counted until July 11.

Reuters, British news agency, said the Hitler-Ciano conference was to discuss plans for an offensive.

Axis Powers in Accord
Strengthening this belief, a Berlin correspondent for Stefani, the Italian news agency, said the axis powers' high representatives had reached "complete agreement" on continuation and development of the war and construction of a "new Europe" when it is ended.

Some other sources suggested that the talks may have projected a drive against British control of the Mediterranean Sea by striking at Gibraltar and Egypt.

Some observers felt, however,

German Submarine Sunk off Canada

Another U-Boat Sighted from Canadian Bombing Plane

NEW YORK, July 7 (AP)—Passengers arriving today on the British liner Scythia said they were told at Halifax that a Canadian bomber recently had sighted two German submarines off the Nova Scotian coast and had sunk one of them.

Henry Durant, head of the British institute of public opinion, an affiliate of the Gallup poll, declared he and other passengers were informed of the bomber's exploit by "officials at Halifax."

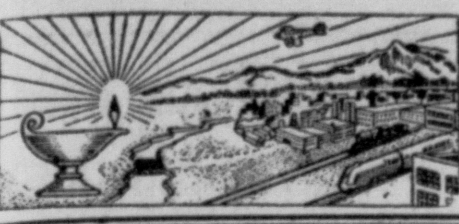

Durant said the officials told him further that "the bomber pilot was so nervous after the bombing he cracked up his plane in landing."

He did not say when the action took place.

The Scythia docked with 344 passengers, most of them war refugees, including seventy-one children—the first group of the planned mass migration of youngsters from England to temporary homes in the United States.

Eighty other children debarked at Halifax.

Roosevelt Tells Farley His Third Term Decision

But Latter Refuses To Say Whether President Will Become Candidate

Party Chairman Merely Says He Had a Satisfactory Talk and Knows President's Plans

HYDE PARK, N. Y., July 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt has made his historic decision on the third term issue.

He disclosed it today to James A. Farley, national Democratic chairman. But Farley would not say whether Mr. Roosevelt had determined to attempt to shatter the third term precedent or leave the White House next January.

The chief executive made his decision known to the man who has been for years one of his ablest political aides, but Farley merely told reporters:

"I had a very satisfactory talk with the president and I have full knowledge of his thoughts and what he has in mind. But I will not discuss it with any individual."

Silent On Third Term

Nor would he give any hint when Mr. Roosevelt might reveal to the nation what he was going to do about a third term.

He said it was up to the president to make any announcement at the time of his choosing.

Farley fended off every effort by reporters to learn whether the third term announcement would come before the Democratic convention, opening in Chicago a week from tomorrow, or whether the delegates would know the president's views in advance of the nominating speeches.

Three times the Democratic national chairman repeated that he had had a satisfactory talk with the chief executive, both from his own end, he thought, the president's point of view. He said they had gone into every phase of the "present day political situation and the future of the party," but that any additional comment must come from Mr. Roosevelt.

He did add, however, that he felt

Farmer Killed by Hit-Run Drivers

SNOWHILL, Md., July 7 (AP)—The mangled body of Samuel Phillips, 52-year-old Pocomoke City farmer, who county authorities said was the victim of two hit-and-run drivers, was found early today on the Pocomoke state highway.

Worcester county authorities and state police immediately began a search for the motorists.

Dr. John L. Riley, Worcester county medical examiner, said the farmer had been riding a bicycle.

Phillips, he said, first was struck by a northbound automobile and his body thrown a considerable distance. Sometime later, he continued, a southbound car hit the victim.

Dr. Riley said Phillips' skull was fractured. The farmer's bicycle, found near the highway, was not damaged.

"We should proceed in an orderly energetic way to create a regular army while training the National Guard as fast as may be."

"It is said, and I do not know what truth, that volunteers are not offering themselves fast enough to fill the regular army and the national guard. What of it?"

"Let the CCC boys go into the army. Why should they be supported in semi-idleness when soldiers are needed? Let such of those on WPA and relief as are of military age and strength find their support in the army."

"Conscription is a desperate remedy—a last resort—and a worthless one unless the people are ready for its sacrifices xxx."

Willkie To Talk With His Running Male at Capital

McNary Not Expected To Take Prominent Part in the Campaign

By RICHARD L. TURNER
WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie, coming to Washington tomorrow to talk campaign plans with his running mate, Senator McNary, and others, is likely to find the senator ready to give unlimited advice, based on a long career in politics, but reluctant to undertake any extensive campaigning himself.

Friends of the senator say he would prefer to confine his own campaign activities to a few radio speeches, by contrast with the vigorous campaigning which Willkie said several days ago he hoped McNary would assume.

Meanwhile the headquarters staff of the Democratic National Committee moved on to Chicago today in advance of the Democratic national convention convening there July 15.

Later in the week, Senator Wagner (D-N.Y.) will go to Chicago with a rough draft of the party platform.

It is his expectation, after his arrival at the convention city, to hold an almost continuous series of informal conferences with groups interested in various platform statements.

Roosevelt Will Rule

As with the Republicans, a row is expected to arise over the party declaration on foreign affairs. But with pro-Roosevelt forces in control, it is considered a certainty that this will end in a complete affirmation of what the administration has said and done.

To offset McNary's conceded appeal in the agricultural areas—he was a co-author of the famous McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, which was vetoed twice by Republican administrations—some party leaders were suggesting Secretary Wallace or Chester C. Davis for the Democratic vice presidential nomination.

Wallace has headed the agriculture department throughout the Roosevelt administration. Davis, formerly agricultural adjustment administrator, is now a member of the board of governors of the federal reserve system and of the president's defense commission.

Wallace May Be Named

Some of Wallace's associates said they expected his name to be put before the convention for the vice presidential nomination, unless President Roosevelt should indicate a preference for the nomination to go to someone else.

Informed political sources said last week that Mr. Roosevelt had decided to accept a third-term nomination, and wanted Secretary Hull to make up the remainder of the ticket. Hull's close friends said, however, that he was unenthusiastic about the proposal, but would accept if the convention should draft him.

McNary, in a sense, was drafted for the Republican vice presidential nomination by Willkie himself and accepted after some persuasion. He is considered one of his party's best political minds and has been highly praised for his services as Republican leader in the Senate.

But the senator's associates say he feels that with a long summer and fall season of Congress in prospect—the Republicans are committed to keeping Congress in session—his place is at the capital, and not journeying about the country on speaking tours.

War Leaders

that the deliberations might be of a political rather than a military nature because Ciano was accompanied by diplomatic advisers and Hitler was joined by German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop.

That German diplomat, however, is known to detest the English, and likely would be called in on any sort of conference aimed at destruction of the island seat of empire.

Ciano went to Berlin on Germany's invitation.

Greeted at Station

He was greeted at the railroad station still decorated with banners which helped Saturday to give Hitler a conqueror's welcome home from the western battlefields.

The continuing bitterness of the war, in which Britain now is the sole opponent of the axis powers, was pointed up for Americans when a false and mysterious SOS wireless message said the U. S. destroyer Barry had been struck by a German submarine and was sinking.

The navy department found that the Barry was peacefully at anchor in Spanish waters.

Passengers arriving in New York on the British liner Scotia said they had been told that a Canadian bomber had destroyed one of two German submarines sighted off Nova Scotia.

The latest German raids on Britain last night caused five more deaths, the British reported.

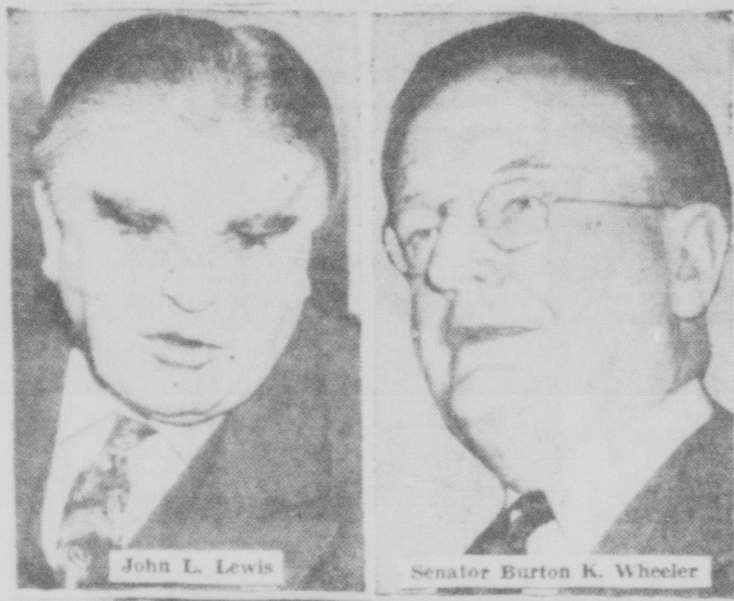

Britain gave and took in the exchange of aerial blows.

Repeatedly her fighter planes took the air to repel German raids on the British Isles. At least three Nazi bombers were reported shot down in the series of sky fights.

Successes were reported for British fighters in Africa and Scandinavia.

INSURRECTION AGAINST F. D. R.!

John L. Lewis

Senator Burton K. Wheeler

Dr. Francis E. Townsend

Rep. John J. O'Connor

These four men may become the nucleus of an anti-third term drive within the Democratic party, or, if that fails, they may attempt to organize a third party. CIO Chief John L. Lewis and Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana both appeared before the national convention of Dr. Francis E. Townsend's old age pension group and warned that they may try to form a third party if President Roosevelt is renominated by the Democratic national convention. Representative John J. O'Connor of New York, target of an attempted White House "purge" in 1938, has declared that a rump convention might be held simultaneously with the Democratic convention if President Roosevelt is nominated.

raided German-held Bergen, Norway, the admiral said, and when they left "oil tanks were on fire and the greater part of the target area was obscured by thick black smoke from burning oil fuel."

In Cairo, the Royal Air Force command reported a series of week-end raids including an attack on Tobruk, on the Libyan coast, which left "two large ships aground, another ship heavily down by the stern, one smaller ship on her side and one cruiser and another ship" apparently in difficulties.

"Fires that could be seen clearly twenty miles away," it said, "were started by bomb hits on two hangars, two oil tanks and warplanes at the Zula airdrome in Italian East Africa."

"In a raid on Bardia July 6, it is now established, forty per cent of the bombs dropped landed in the middle of large troop concentrations," the communiqué declared. "An enemy bomber and enemy fighter were damaged while transport personnel and troops were heavily machinegunned."

But, on the other side, these heavy blows against Britain were reported.

By the Nazi high command.

Two Destroyers Damaged

Successful repetition of German air attacks "on important military objectives in the south of England," such heavy damage to two destroyers in the middle North Sea "that they must be regarded as a total loss," a 6,000-ton merchantman sunk by a speedboat off the Isle of Wight and an 8,000-ton merchant ship set afire by a bomb hit.

A submarine, an auxiliary warship and a patrol boat sunk and a 10,000-ton cruiser heavily damaged.

By the Italian high command: "Successful waves of violent action against the air and naval bases at Malta," Britain's eastern Mediterranean stronghold, in which the Italian fliers' objectives all "were hit squarely, starting fires in arsenal zones that were visible at a long distance," hangars and fuel depots hit and six parked British planes destroyed in attacks on three air bases in northern Africa.

The United States liner Washington sailed for New York from Galway, Ireland, jammed with 1,800 American refugees from Ebro's war.

As Mexico elected a new president, three supporters of Gen. Manuel Avila Camacho, administration candidate, were killed and three others were wounded by gunfire in a fight over control of a voting place in Mexico City.

In the air—Damaged a bomber and fighter plane at Bardia; shot down at least one raiding Italian plane over the British naval base on the island of Malta.

The British said four civilians were injured during the Italian raid yesterday on Malta.

The Italians reported the raid on Malta was part of widespread attacks on British positions and said bombs started fires in the Malta arsenal zone.

The Italian account of the British attack at Tobruk said Italian planes and anti-aircraft fire brought down three British aircraft. Two unloaded merchant ships in the harbor were reported hit by bombs.

The British claimed all their raiding planes returned safely from Italy, and made no mention of losses.

Warplanes of the fleet air arm are in other attacks.

Youth, 20, Injured In Plane Crash

LEONARDTOWN, Md., July 7 (AP)—James Van Devanter, son of Henry Van Devanter of Leonardtown, was injured today when an airplane in which he was a passenger failed to clear some trees in a take-off and crashed near here.

The youth, who lives in Washington with his mother, was taken to St. Mary's hospital here, where the extent of his injuries was not immediately disclosed.

He had started up in one of three planes which were here to stage an aerial show and take up passengers. The pilot escaped injury but the plane's propeller and one wing were badly damaged.

army and $1,000,000,000 for the navy. Senator George (D-Ga.), a member of the Senate Finance Committee, said it was his understanding that this huge new defense request would be linked with a tax increase of $1,000,000,000, although it was uncertain whether the president would allude in his message to the financing of the new program.

George said he thought a maximum of $350,000,000 additional could be raised by excess profits taxes on corporations, which the president already has suggested to Congress. The remaining $650,000,000, he predicted, would have to be obtained from individuals and through miscellaneous sources.

Will Revise Tax System

"In my judgment," the Georgia senator told reporters, "we are going to have to start work right away on the skeleton of a tax bill. It will have to be based on a thorough-going revision of the tax system and it probably will take months to do the job right."

George's prediction was in line with the contentions of many members of Congress that the special $1,000,000,000 defense tax bill rushed through Congress last month was only a "makeshift" and that an overhauling of the tax system would have to be undertaken by Congress to provide proper financing for the enlarged defense program.

Although this will be a short work week—the plan is to recess Thursday until after next week's Democratic convention—Congressional leaders hope to complete action on two cabinet appointments, the $4,000,000,000 naval expansion bill and the Hatch political practices measure.

Nominations Up Today

The Senate will take up tomorrow the nominations of Henry L. Stimson to be secretary of war and Col. Frank Knox to be secretary of the navy. A vote is expected on Tuesday.

The naval bill, proposing a seven-year construction program to add 200 warships to the fleet, then will receive the right of way in the Senate. It already has passed the House.

In the House, the Hatch bill is to be called up on Tuesday. This Senate-approved measure would forbid political activity by state employees who are paid in part with federal funds.

A spokesman for the war department, expected to be Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, will testify before the Senate Military Committee Tuesday on the Burke-Wadsworth military conscription bill. It is understood that the department will endorse the principle of the bill, but suggest some changes including a proposal that the men in training receive regular army pay. As the bill now stands, trainees would be paid $5 a month.

May Increase Debt

The talk of new taxes as a result of the expanded defense program was coupled with speculation that it might be necessary, too, to authorize a further increase in the public debt.

The defense tax law authorized a $4,000,000,000 boost to $49,000,000,000, but George said he doubted that this increase would be enough to care for the mounting deficit if a large amount of immediate appropriations were involved in the president's new defense request.

Most legislators thought, however, that the new program would be largely limited to a proposal that the army and navy be allowed to make contracts for purchases to be paid for later.

Although there appeared to be little advance opposition to the new request, some legislators said they wanted to study it before committing themselves. Among these was Senator Adams (D-Colo.), chairman of the Deficiency Appropriations Committee which will consider the request. Adams said he thought there would be no opposition, if it was demonstrated that the funds were needed to build up adequate defenses.

Holt Sees Pump Priming

But Senator Holt (D-W.Va.) said that a proposal for $5,000,000,000 additional for defense smacked to him of "pump priming."

"I don't have any objection to genuine defense expenditures," Holt told reporters, "but I don't think we ought to do any pump priming in the name of defense. It may be that this is a defense fund against the Republicans. I think some of the Democrats are more afraid of an invasion by Wendell Willkie than they are of an invasion by Hitler."

A woman passenger insisted that commander Norman Hitchcock, naval attaché in the United States embassy in London, "take my bags to my hotel." She had mistaken the commander for a hotel porter.

Russia Pouring New Troops into Rumanian Areas

Soldiers and Equipment Arriving in Lost Northern Territory

BUCHAREST, July 7 (Passed by Censor) (AP)—Soviet Russia poured additional armed divisions into Rumania's lost northern territories tonight to strengthen motorized troops which completed the occupation of Bessarabia and northern Bucovina July 3.

Reports from the new frontiers said Soviet soldiers and equipment still were arriving.

Quiet on the Border

Officially it was declared that "all is quiet" along the border, with Rumanian troops not involved in any incidents in the past few days. Nationwide Rumanian precautions continued, however, against any new emergency.

It was indicated that the government of the new premier Ion Gurgu planned to proceed cautiously in fulfilling its announced extremist program.

Germany was represented in pro-Nazi iron guard circles as being opposed to any extremist measures which might provoke internal disorder and injure Rumania's productivity for Germany in this crucial year.

Hans Otto Roth, the Transylvanian Saxon has not yet taken his oath of office before King Carol as minister of minorities, it was learned tonight.

The naming of Roth by the Gurgu government was a general surprise in Balkan circles and was regarded as a bid for German support by the Gurgu regime since the Saxons (Germanic natives) in Transylvania are secondary in number to the Hungarians.

No explanation was available here as to why Roth has not assumed office. It was reported that he is in Transylvania conferring with Saxon minorities leaders at this time.

(In Transylvanian circles in Budapest it was reported that the Saxons are demanding specific guarantees regarding satisfaction of their claims before endorsing Roth. The total German minority in Transylvania, according to the 1930 Rumanian census, is 740,000 compared with a Hungarian total of 1,426,000.)

seized twenty radio transmitters later in raids.

One of the most effective tricks by the Fifth Columnists was sprung when the Germans began driving swiftly southward into France. Nazi agents, posing as French officials, would telephone the mayors of communities in areas not immediately endangered, warn them the Germans were approaching and order immediate evacuation.

That was responsible in at least one case, the Americans said, for abandonment of a factory with more than 100 fully-completed fast armored cars several days before the Germans arrived.

The worried French government, American experts, contributed to the growing confusion and the reduction of efficiency by ordering that all official orders must be double-checked.

Morale Undermined

The Fifth Columnist so successfully undermined French morale by launching defeatist rumors that the government was forced to counsel the nation against believing anything not printed or broadcast officially.

Cameras played little part in espionage activities during the war itself, the Americans said, because everything necessary along this line had been accomplished before hostilities broke out.

Many pictures were said to have been carried back to Germany before the war by Nazi sailors on ships calling at French ports.

France was a ripe field for recruiting Fifth Columnists because large numbers of foreigners had been admitted in the last twenty years, the Americans said, but some of the most efficient work was done by individuals in the upper political brackets, who were blackmailed into cooperating.

Dropped by Parachutes

To the operatives placed in France before the war, they said, Germany sent reinforcements by ingenious methods. Some agents supposedly were dropped by parachutes which later were destroyed with small cans of acid.

The greatest influx, it was said, came disguised as Belgian refugees when the French opened their frontiers to the thousands fleeing before the German invasion of the low countries.

French police conducted energetic raids in an attempt to combat the Fifth Columnists, and toward the end were arresting all Germans regardless of whether they had specific reasons to suspect them.

But by then the country was honeycombed with Nazi agents. Fear of Fifth Columnists, it was said, was one reason why the French declared Paris and other cities "open" and surrendered them without fighting.

3 Nazi Ships Sunk

LONDON, July 7 (AP)—The British submarine Snapper torpedoed five German ships in convoy off the coast of Norway, the admiralty reported today.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

The drive to rearm America is proceeding at a speed which is entirely satisfactory to the men at the controls.

They are primed to give that answer to questions which they expect from Congress when President Roosevelt submits his request for $5,000,000,000 additional for defense.

Accurate gauges of progress are lacking and less than two months has elapsed since Mr. Roosevelt asked for the first extra defense funds, advancing at the same time the proposal for 50,000 planes. Nevertheless, the available evidence indicates that in major respects the mobilization of national resources is ahead or fully abreast of official expectations.

It may be significant that details of the newest program, involving long range tasks of munitions manufacture for thousands of industrial plants, were worked out in five weeks. The defense advisory commission, army and navy officials had expected that as much as three months would be required.

Moving Like Nazis

In the considered judgment of one key official expert, whose career has been devoted to advance preparations for the emergency preparedness efforts now in full swing, the United States is moving fully as fast in reinforcing its military might as did the Nazis at the outset of Adolf Hitler's drive to convert Democratic plane was driven away from Gibraltar without dropping bombs. One Italian plane was shot down during a raiding squadron struck at Malta twice, repeating raids yesterday that cost the Italians one plane downed and two damaged.

Three times German planes roared over western England, leaving at least four houses destroyed. The same district was raided once Friday and four times Saturday.

"Some houses were destroyed and some casualties, including a number of persons killed, were caused by bombs which fell in coastal districts in the west country," said a communiqué.

But, it declared, "our defenses were active and no important attacks developed. . . . an enemy fighter was shot down off our coast this afternoon by anti-aircraft fire."

That was the second Nazi fighter plane the British reported bagged during the day's raids—from which Britain has had but one day's rest since June 18—and at least two Dornier bombers were reported shot down over the English channel. A third was seen in difficulties.

From morning until night, enough of the Nazi raiders pierced anti-air defenses to bomb scattered sections of southern and southwestern England and southeastern Scotland.

One man was killed by shrapnel in a daylight foray in the southwest. The raiders there, however, met a terrific anti-aircraft barrage and were chased by British spitfires. The crew of one raider shot down into the sea escaped by parachute.

Eight Houses Destroyed

Another man was killed and several were injured when ten bombs were dropped on a south coast road, demolishing eight houses and damaging others. Strangely, windows close to the bomb craters were undamaged while others a half-mile away were splintered.

The British claimed that their own counter blows from the air, ranging from the southern Atlantic coast of France to Narvik, in Arctic Norway, have been more effective.

Striking at dawn through heavy anti-aircraft fire, British naval planes started large oil tank fires and hit other objectives at Bergen, Norway.

Continue Mine Laying

The British broadcasting company told of continued mine laying by Royal Air Force planes in the Baltic and said "there is not one sea passage, fjord, estuary or harbor (around Norway) that the Germans can use without risk."

The admiralty claimed for British submarines, also, effective operations against Germany's sea lane communications with Norway.

A communiqué said the submarine Snapper scattered a large German convoy after hitting two supply ships with torpedoes, then torpedoed three ships in another convoy.

German raids over England and Scotland met with heavy resistance. Observers on the ground saw fast-striking British pursuit ships in dog fights with enemy bombers and their fighting escort ships. Barrages of anti-aircraft fire burst around the raiders over the heavily defended coastline.

British sources said the two bombers brought down during the day raised to thirty-nine planes the number of German losses in raids since June 18. It was estimated that 150 German fliers have been killed.

Bombings during that period were said to have taken 122 lives, exclusive of any today.

Fake Radio News Has an American Destroyer Sunk

Torpedoing of U. S. Barry by U-Boat only a Phoney Story

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—A mysterious S. O. S. reporting that the U. S. destroyer Barry had been struck by a German submarine and was sinking caused the government an anxious two hours today, before it determined that the message was strictly phoney.

Picked up in the first place by Mackay radio, the S. O. S. said: "Sinking slowly, hit by German submarine; water in hold; can last three hours." The position given was 400 miles off the coast of Spain.

The navy, whose own communication system had not picked up the message, busily checked it and then reported:

"The navy has received a communication directly from the Barry and she is not in distress. She is peacefully at anchor."

All that remained of the incident was speculation as to its origin, whether a prankster or more sinister forces were behind it, and whether an investigation might be undertaken.

Doubt was cast upon the authenticity of the S. O. S. from the start by the fact that it came in on the Barry's own wave length, but on fifty-five meters—that reserved for the trans-Atlantic Clipper planes.

Navy Denies Report

Mackay attempted at once to verify the report through the U. S. liner Manhattan, due to reach Lisbon tomorrow. Word came back from the liner that it had been in communication with the U. S. S. Trenton, also in those waters and that the latter knew nothing of the report.

While Mackay was trying to reach the Barry directly, the navy's own radio system succeeded in that purpose, with its denial of the report following.

While the Barry was known to be in Spanish waters, the navy declined to say where she was anchored, explaining that such information was not given out under present day conditions.

There had been reports that the vessel was at Bilbao, Spain, to transport Ambassador Anthony J. Drexel Biddle to London. Biddle is accredited to the Polish government.

The state department said emphatically, however, that neither he nor any other United States naval vessel would go to London.

Consider Investigation

The question of an investigation appeared to be a matter both for the navy department and the communications commission.

While there was no official word that steps might be taken, Chairman James L. Fly of the communications commission said it might safely be assumed that the commission would look into the matter.

The commission is charged with guarding against unauthorized and unlicensed radio communication, and, particularly since the present emergency arose, has operated monitor stations to check on such messages.

There was no word whether these stations had picked up the reported S. O. S. or had any indication of the point of its origin.

The Barry is attached to the squadron which the navy has long maintained in European waters. She was launched in 1920 at Newport News, Va., displaces 1,190 tons and normally carries a complement of 122 men.

ships Dunkerque and Provence and the flotilla leader Mogador, the same dispatch said.

(The Bretagne was blown up and the Dunkerque, Provence and Mogador were set on fire in the British naval attack off Algeria.)

Jean Provost, French information minister, in a declaration issued at Vichy in response to British Prime Minister Churchill on the naval action which precipitated the final break between the former allies, said:

"Within a few hours, you have brought more sorrow to the sailors' families than ten months of naval battles have done."

"These sailors whom you have killed were the same who, a few weeks ago, saved four-fifths of the British army on the shore of Flanders while only half the French forces succeeded in embarking."

A French war council in Toulouse, meanwhile, sentenced former general Charles De Gaulle in absentia to four years in prison and fined him 100 francs for disobeying army orders and inciting soldiers' disobedience.

Gen. De Gaulle, who refused to accept France's capitulation to Germany, has led continued resistance from London where he has appealed by radio to French forces to continue the fight and, in violation of the Petain government's orders, has organized French remnants in Britain to join British land and sea forces.)

WILLIAM THOMAS P.

Willkie To Talk With His Running Male at Capital

McNary Not Expected To Take Prominent Part in the Campaign

By RICHARD L. TURNER
WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie, coming to Washington tomorrow to talk campaign plans with his running-mate, Senator McNary, and others, is likely to find the senator ready to give unlimited advice, based on a long career in politics, but reluctant to undertake any extensive campaigning himself.

Friends of the senator say he would prefer to confine his own campaign activities to a few radio speeches, by contrast with the vigorous campaigning which Willkie said several days ago he hoped McNary would assume.

Meanwhile, the headquarters staff of the Democratic National Committee moved on to Chicago today in advance of the Democratic national convention convening there July 15.

Later in the week, Senator Wagner (D-N.Y.) will go to Chicago with a rough draft of the party platform. It is his expectation, after his arrival at the convention city, to hold an almost continuous series of informal conferences with groups interested in various platform statements.

Roosevelt Will Rule

As with the Republicans, a row is expected to arise over the party declaration on foreign affairs. But with pro-Roosevelt forces in control, it is considered a certainty that this will end in a complete affirmation of what the administration has said and done.

To offset McNary's conceded appeal in the agricultural areas—he was a co-author of the famous McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, which was vetoed twice by Republican administrations—some party leaders were suggesting Secretary Wallace or Chester C. Davis for the Democratic vice presidential nomination.

Wallace has headed the agriculture department throughout the Roosevelt administration. Davis, formerly agricultural adjustment administrator, is now a member of the board of governors of the federal reserve system, and of the president's defense commission.

Wallace May Be Named

Some of Wallace's associates said they expected his name to be put before the convention for the vice presidential nomination, unless President Roosevelt should indicate a preference for the nomination to go to someone else.

Informed political sources said last week that Mr. Roosevelt had decided to accept a third-term nomination, and wanted Secretary Hull to make up the remainder of the ticket. Hull's close friends said, however, that he was unenthusiastic about the proposal, but would accept if the convention should draft him.

McNary, in a sense, was drafted for the Republican vice presidential nomination by Willkie himself and accepted after some persuasion. He is considered one of his party's best political minds and has been highly praised for his services as Republican leader in the Senate.

But the senator's associates say he feels that with a long summer and fall session of Congress in prospect—the Republicans are committed to keeping Congress in session—his place is at the capital, and not journeying about the country on speaking tours.

that the deliberations might be of a political rather than a military nature because Ciano was accompanied by diplomatic advisers and Hitler was joined by German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop.

That German diplomat, however, is known to detest the English, and likely would be called in on any sort of conference aimed at destruction of the island seat of empire.

Ciano went to Berlin on Germany's invitation.

Greeted at Station
He was greeted at the railroad station with decorated with banners which helped Saturday to give Hitler a conqueror's welcome home from the western battlefields.

The continuing bitterness of the war, in which Britain now is the sole opponent of the axis powers, was pointed out for Americans when a false and mysterious SOS wireless message said the U. S. destroyer Barry had been struck by a German submarine and was sinking.

The navy department found that the Barry was peacefully at anchor in Spanish waters.

Passengers arriving in New York on the British liner Scotia said they had been told that a Canadian bomber had destroyed one of two German submarines sighted off Nova Scotia.

The latest German raids on British last night caused five more deaths, the British reported.

Britain gave and took in the exchange of aerial blows.

Repeatedly her fighter planes took the air to repel German raids on the British Isles. At least three Nazi bombers were reported shot down in the series of sky fights.

Successes were reported for British air forces in Africa and Scandinavia.

INSURRECTION AGAINST F. D. R.?

Senator Burton K. Wheeler

Dr. Francis E. Townsend

Rep. John J. O'Connor

These four men may become the nucleus of an anti-third term drive within the Democratic party, or, if that fails, they may attempt to organize a third party. CIO Chief John L. Lewis and Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana both appeared before the national convention of Dr. Francis E. Townsend's old age pension group and warned that they may try to form a third party if President Roosevelt is renominated by the Democratic national convention. Representative John J. O'Connor of New York, target of an attempted White House "purge" in 1938, has declared that a rump convention might be held simultaneously with the Democratic convention if President Roosevelt is nominated.

raided German-held Bergen, Norway, the admiral said, and when they left "oil tanks were on fire and the greater part of the target area was obscured by thick black smoke from burning oil fuel."

In Cairo, the Royal Air Force command reported a series of week-end raids including an attack on Tobruk, on the Libyan coast, which left "two large ships aground, another ship heavily down on her stern, one smaller ship on her side and one cruiser and another ship apparently in difficulties."

"Fires that could be seen clearly twenty miles away," it said, "were started by bomb hits on two hangars, two oil tanks and warplanes at the Zula airdrome in Italian East Africa."

"In a raid on Bardia July 6, it is now established, forty per cent of the bombs dropped landed in the middle of large troop concentrations," the communique declared. "An enemy bomber and enemy fighter were damaged while transport personnel and troops were heavily machinegunned."

But, on the other side, these heavy blows against Britain were reported:

By the Nazi high command:

Two Destroyers Damaged
Successful repetition of German air attacks "on important military objectives in the south of England," such heavy damage to two destroyers in the middle North Sea "that they must be regarded as a total loss."

A 6,000-ton merchantman sunk by a speedboat off the Isle of Wight and an 8,000-ton merchant ship set afire by a bomb hit. A submarine, an auxiliary warship and a patrol boat sunk and a 10,000-ton cruiser heavily damaged.

By the Italian high command:
"Successive waves of violent action against the air and naval bases at Malta," Britain's eastern Mediterranean stronghold, in which the Italian fliers' objectives all "were hit squarely, starting fires in arsenal zones that were visible at a long distance," hangars and fuel depots hit and six parked British planes destroyed in attacks on three air bases in northern Africa.

The United States liner Washington sailed for New York from Galway, Ireland, jammed with 1,600 American refugees from Ebrope's war.

As Mexico elected a new president, three supporters of Gen. Manuel Avila Camacho, administration candidate, were killed and three others were wounded by gunfire in a fight over control of a voting place in Mexico City.

To the operatives placed in France before the war, they said, Germany sent reinforcements by ingenious methods. Some agents supposedly were dropped by parachutes which later were destroyed with small cans of acid.

The greatest influx, it was said, came disguised as Belgian refugees when the French opened their frontiers to the thousands fleeing before the German invasion of the low countries.

French police conducted energetic raids in an attempt to combat the Fifth Columnists, and toward the end were arresting all Germans regardless of whether they had specific reasons to suspect them.

But by then the country was honeycombed with Nazi agents. Fear of Fifth Columnists, it was said, was one reason why the French declared Paris and other cities "open" and surrendered them without fighting.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

The drive to rearm America is proceeding at a speed which is entirely satisfactory to the men at the controls.

They are primed to give that answer to questions which they expect from Congress when President Roosevelt submits his request for $5,000,000,000 additional for defense.

Accurate gauges of progress are lacking and less than two months has elapsed since Mr. Roosevelt asked for the first extra defense funds, advancing at the same time the proposal for 50,000 planes. Nevertheless, the available evidence indicates that in major respects the mobilization of national resources is ahead or fully abreast of official expectations.

It may be significant that details of the newest program, involving long range tasks of munitions manufacture for thousands of industrial plants, were worked out in five weeks. The defense advisory commission, army and navy officials had expected that as much as three months would be required.

Moving Like Nazis

In the considered judgment of one key official expert, whose career has been devoted to advance preparations for the emergency preparedness efforts now in full swing, the United States is moving fully as fast in reinforcing its military might as did the Nazis at the outset of Adolf Hitler's drive to convert Democratic plane was driven away from Gibraltar without dropping bombs. One Italian plane was shot down when a raiding squadron struck at Malta twice, repeating raids yesterday that cost the Italians one plane downed and two damaged.

Three times German planes roared over western England, leaving at least four houses destroyed. The same district was raided once Friday and four times Saturday.

"Some houses were destroyed and some casualties, including a number of persons killed, were caused by bombs which fell in coastal districts in the west country," said a communique.

But, it declared, "our defenses were active and no important attacks developed. An enemy fighter was shot down off our coast this afternoon by anti-aircraft fire."

Second Plane Shot Down

That was the second Nazi fighter plane the British reported bagged during the day's raids—from which Britain has had but one day's rest since June 18—and at least two Dornier bombers were reported shot down over the English channel. A third was seen in difficulties.

From morning until night, enough of the Nazi raiders pierced anti-air defenses to bomb scattered sections of southern and southwestern England and southeastern Scotland.

One man was killed by shrapnel in a daylight foray in the southwest. The raiders there, however, met a terrific anti-aircraft barrage and were chased by British spitfires. The crew of one raider shot down into the sea escaped by parachute.

Eight Houses Destroyed

Another man was killed and several were injured when ten bombs were dropped on a south coast road, demolishing eight houses and damaging others. Strangely, windows close to the bomb craters were undamaged while others a half-mile away were splintered.

The British claimed that their own counter blows from the air, ranging from the southern Atlantic coast of France to Narvik, in Arctic Norway, have been more effective.

Striking at dawn through heavy anti-aircraft fire, British naval planes started large oil tank fires and hit other objectives at Bergen, Norway.

Continue Mine Laying

The British broadcasting company told of continued mine laying by Royal Air Force planes in the Baltic and said "there is not one sea passage, fjord, estuary or harbor (around Norway) that the Germans can use without risk."

The admiralty claimed for British submarines, also, effective operations against Germany's sea lane communications with Norway.

A communique said the submarine Snapper scattered a large German convoy after hitting two supply ships with torpedoes, then torpedoed three ships in another convoy.

German raids over England and Scotland met with heavy resistance. Observers on the ground saw fast-striking British pursuit ships in dog fights with enemy bombers and their fighting escort ships. Barrages of anti-aircraft fire burst around the raiders over the heavily defended coastline.

British sources said the two bombers brought down during the day raised to thirty-nine planes the number of German losses in raids since June 18. It was estimated that 150 German fliers have been killed.

Bombings during that period were said to have taken 122 lives, exclusive of any today.

order until after it is attacked is whipped before it starts, x x x. "We cannot buy national defense. We shall have to sweat and toil for it. That is why the first step in national defense is to correct the fundamental error—shared by Republicans and Democrats alike—the mistaken idea that we have been suffering from overproduction."

"The only source of real prosperity is work. Instead of working we waited."

Germany into a totalitarian nation in arms.

By careful calculations of the defense commission, mass production of munitions should reach full stride in sixteen months, compared with the two years the United States required under wartime pressure a quarter century ago, two years by Nazi Germany and three or four years by Great Britain since 1936.

In the initial stage, it seems entirely likely that more substantial progress is being made amid less confusion than in the comparable period of 1917.

Plans on Vast Scale

Certainly American plans are on a vast scale. The British four years ago undertook the construction of ordnance plants estimated to cost $175,000,000, and eventually thirty-eight were put into operation to expand the output of private industry. By comparison, war department blueprints are ready for exactly twice as many, involving some $558,000,000.

These calculations and comparisons are confined to economic mobilization—the conversion of industry from peacetime production to the manufacture of planes, tanks, warships and the thousands of other weapons and items of supply comprising munitions. All other immediate preparedness problems are overshadowed by this task, whose essence is time as well as money.

Despite all the striving for speed, weeks must elapse before all contracts are placed even for the arms provided for in the funds voted last month, entirely aside from the thousands of orders involved in the costly proposals yet to come.

The most laborious progress thus far, as anticipated, has been in arranging to step up the output of army ordnance. Only about $40,000,000 or $600,000,000 has been expended, but contracts representing about $200,000,000 are to be ready shortly.

Another order being put in shape involves more than 20,000 motor trucks for the expanding army.

Plane Makers Complain

Immediately ahead is a major difficulty resulting from a Congressional limitation of eight per cent on profits and rulings of the treasury on tax calculations. Aircraft manufacturers particularly have complained against being forced to face risks of loss which they contend are unjustifiable.

Congress has been advised repeatedly, and will be further, not to expect munitions to be produced automatically like chewing gum when a coin is dropped into a slot machine. Major General Henry H. Arnold, army air corps chief, commented along this line that there was no known way to shorten the three weeks required to hatch a chicken, although twice as many eggs might be hatched by putting two hens to work.

was expected to go higher. Shootings were reported from various other cities, although in the north, near the United States border, the election was comparatively quiet.

The wounded Americans were Edward J. Mallen, Jr., of Davenport, Iowa, shot through the stomach and believed near death and Leonard Dursq, 18, a Georgetown University student of Union City, N. J., who suffered a rifle bullet in the left side. Both were shot in riots in the heart of the capital.

Machine Guns Used

Rifles, pistols, machine guns, hand grenades and tear gas bombs were used freely in the fighting in Mexico City and the federal district.

Headquarters of General Almazan announced that the dead included Col. Vicente Obregon, former director of mails and telegraphs, and former General Melchor Gonzales, and blamed Avila Camacho followers for their slayings.

President Cardenas, whose administration is backing Avila Camacho, toured polling places during the day, frequently exchanging banter with Almazan followers who crowded around and stopped his car. He declined to make a statement as the voting ended, however.

In Mexico City, police mounted and afoot, fought with a great throng on Paseo de La Reforma, one of the capital's most beautiful boulevards, at a point almost in front of the foreign office.

Police Swing Clubs
The police swung clubs freely and drove the crowd back with their horses, firing over the heads of the demonstrators, who angrily shouted "viva Almazan!" for the anti-administration candidate.

PRM, the administration political party of President Lazaro Cardenas, which is backing General Avila Camacho, announced over the radio that "Avila Camacho has triumphed throughout the country."

The broadcast was interrupted, however, as the announcer yelled into the microphone:

Radio Station Attacked

"Almazanistas are attacking our station here on the Avenida Cinco de Mayo (in the downtown business district) because of our announcements."

General Almazan issued copies of various announcements which he said had been prepared yesterday and were being read today over the radio, claiming victory for Avila Camacho.

Fake Radio News Has an American Destroyer Sunk

Torpedoing of U. S. Barry by U-Boat only a Phoney Story

WASHINGTON, July 7 (AP)—A mysterious U. S. O. S. reporting that the U. S. destroyer Barry had been struck by a German submarine and was sinking caused the government an anxious two hours today, before it determined that the message was strictly phoney.

Picked up in the first place by Mackay radio, the S. O. S. said: "Sinking slowly, hit by German submarine; water in hold; can last three hours." The position given was 400 miles off the coast of Spain.

The navy, whose own communication system had not picked up the message, busily checked it and then reported:

"The navy has received a communication directly from the Barry and she is not in distress. She is peacefully at anchor."

All that remained of the incident was speculation as to its origin, whether a prankster or more sinister forces were behind it, and whether an investigation might be undertaken.

Doubt was cast upon the authenticity of the S. O. S. from the start by the fact that it came in, not on the Barry's own wave length, but upon fifty-five meters—that reserved for the trans-Atlantic Clipper planes.

Navy Denies Report

Mackay attempted at once to verify the report through the U. S. liner Manhattan, due to reach London tomorrow. Word came back from the liner that it had been in communication with the U. S. S. Trenton, also in those waters and that the latter knew nothing of the report.

While Mackay was trying to reach the Barry directly, the navy's own radio system succeeded in that purpose, with its denial of the report following.

While the Barry was known to be in Spanish waters, the navy declined to say where she was anchored, explaining that such information was not given out under present day conditions.

There had been reports that the vessel was at Bilbao, Spain, to transport Ambassador Anthony J. Drexel Biddle to London. Biddle is accredited to the Polish government.

MAN'S WORK

Not Until He Spoke to the Old Man Did George Know
the True Meaning of Success—after Failure

BY G. W. COSGROVE

"Scooped again! Now I know I'm through. Wish Paul would come back."

George Whiting, cub reporter on the Star-Tribune, threw down his paper disgustedly.

It had all started on that dreary day when he received three weeks' notice.

"Son, it's tradition that you're no newspaper man until you've been fired at least three times," the old man told him.

George had graduated from college nine months previous to the firing and had joined the staff two weeks later. W. Floyd Emory, the "Old Man," had been city editor for 15 years and was the veteran of the paper. A bald, pudgy man of 60, alert and fiery, his nose was a bit red from acquaintance with the spirits, but his heart was as large as the beer glass from which he nourished it.

"You've got to take this philosophically," he continued. "You've the talent and if you've any guts you won't stop here."

At precisely that point the office boy brought a note to the old man, who had looked at it, shrugged and stuck it in his pocket, continuing with his advice.

"I recall when I had to watch every step for fear I'd be fired. And I was fired—twice, and each time I located a better job. Now I'm satisfied to stay here. I'm experienced and they pay well. Some day you'll be in the same spot, but until you do, keep the chin up and start hunting."

George's answer revealed a new spirit. "A few minutes ago I was ready to call it quits and get out. Now I think I'll look around."

Ten days after that conversation, George still was in the dumps. Things didn't seem to go right. As he lay in his bed in the small backstreet hotel room that he called home, he was lonely and blue.

"The Old Man's all wet," he thought. "Probably trying to smooth things over. I'm no newspaperman, might as well admit it. I'll go back home and work in dad's store."

Then, for some unaccountable reason, he recalled the note the Old Man received that day. "Wonder what it was? Suppose he's due for a raise. Why couldn't that happen to me?"

He then dropped off to sleep, and the next morning, after a fitful night, he awoke with a headache and an intense desire to tell the whole world to take a trip to a warmer climate.

Once in the office, he forgot his anger. Word must have spread that he'd soon be leaving, for everyone seemed to have a good word. They remembered their start in newswork and were trying to make it easier for the kid.

Emory, today as every day recently, showed him his errors as he edited the youngster's stories, advising him and watching over him. "Maybe this racket isn't so bad," he thought. "Now if they'll only change their minds about firing me."

Then it happened. Break or disaster, he didn't know which, but it was a change.

Paul Johnson, the reporter with whom George worked, was involved in a serious accident while returning from a week-end visit with his brother. He would be out for at least three months.

George was given Paul's beat because he knew best how to handle it, having worked on it on Paul's regular days off.

Finally a new man was hired to help him. He was beginning to feel a bit more normal again, although he still did most of the important work on both his own and Paul's beats.

On George's desk the next morning was a note to see Editor Thorne. "Here goes," he said to one of the other men. "Probably wants to gloat over me for a while before he drops the ax."

Thorne, however, surprised him; asked how he was coming and how he now liked the work.

"Whiting," he said. "I want you to know that we've all appreciated the way you've taken hold since Johnson's been out. You've helped us over a tight spot. But today your three weeks are up."

The reporter sat down in the chair across from Thorne's desk with a thud. This was really pouring vinegar over the sugar. Here it was; he should have known better than to expect the old warhorse to do anything decent. Then the managing editor continued:

"But I want you to forget it. We were letting you go for inefficiency, but you've shown us we were wrong. Monday, you can start on another beat with a five-dollar raise. You've earned it."

But Mr. Thorne, George interrupted, "who's going to have my old beat? Who's going to do Paul's work?"

The new man's taking Paul's work and a former member of the staff who has returned from Europe will handle your work. Now beat it. I'm busy."

"Thank you, the surprised George stammered. 'I've tried to do my best.'"

"That's why you're staying."

With that, George left the office and tore up the stairs. A thought jarred him: "Bet the Old Man had something to do with this."

In the office the Old Man was waiting. He greeted George with a short, "Well?"

"I'm not fired!"

"Known it for three days. We're making a change. You take over the police beat."

"Well! Now that that's settled, what are your orders?"

A queer, hard look came over the Old Man's face as he replied gruffly.

"Afraid I won't be giving orders, son. Remember the note I received from the office the day you got your notice?"

"Yes, but—" George was frankly puzzled.

"No buts about it. I'm the change that's being made. That note was notice for me. Too old, they say. But don't worry, kid, they like your work, so keep plugging."

"What about you?"

"Do you recall my telling you a few days ago that I was going to be fired? Well, I was. But I was fired—twice, and each time I located a better job. Now I'm satisfied to stay here. I'm experienced and they pay well. Some day you'll be in the same spot, but until you do, keep the chin up and start hunting."

THE DAILY STORY

MAN'S WORK

Not Until He Spoke to the Old Man Did George Know
the True Meaning of Success—after Failure

BY G. W. COSGROVE

"Scooped again! Now I know I'm through. Wish Paul would come back."

George Whiting, cub reporter on the Star-Tribune, threw down his paper disgustedly.

It had all started on that dreary day when he received three weeks' notice.

"Son, it's tradition that you're no newspaper man until you've been old beat? Who's going to do Paul's work?"

The new man's taking Paul's work and a former member of the staff who has returned from Europe will handle your work. Now beat it. I'm busy."

"Thank you, the surprised George stammered. 'I've tried to do my best.'"

"That's why you're staying."

With that, George left the office and tore up the stairs. A thought jarred him: "Bet the Old Man had something to do with this."

In the office the Old Man was waiting. He greeted George with a short, "Well?"

"I'm not fired!"

Known it for three days. We're making a change. You take over the police beat."

"Swell! Now that that's settled, what are your orders?"

A queer, hard look came over the Old Man's face as he replied gruffly. "Afraid I won't be giving orders, son. Remember the note I received from the office the day you got your notice?"

"Yes, but—" George was frankly puzzled.

"No buts about it. I'm the change that's being made. That note was notice for me. Too old, they say. But don't worry, kid, they like your work. You keep plugging."

"What about you?"

"Do you recall my telling you a

A queer, hard look came over the Old Man's face

fired at least three times," the old man told him.

George had graduated from college nine months previous to the firing and had joined the staff two weeks later. W. Floyd Emory, the "Old Man," had been city editor for 15 years and was the veteran of 60, alert and fiery. His nose was a bit red from acquaintance with the spirits, but his heart was as large as the beer glass from which he nourished it.

"You've got to take this philosophically," he continued. "You've the talent and if you've any guts you won't stop here."

At precisely that point the office boy brought a note to the old man, who had looked at it, shrugged and stuck it in his pocket, continuing with his advice.

"I recall when I had to watch every step for fear I'd be fired. And I was fired—twice, and each time I located a better job. Now I'm satisfied to stay here. I'm experienced and they pay well. Some day you'll be in the same spot, but until you do, keep the chin up and start hunting."

George's answer revealed a new spirit. "A few minutes ago I was ready to call it quits and get out. Now I think I'll look around."

Ten days after that conversation, George still was in the dumps. Things didn't seem to go right. As he lay in his bed in the small backstreet hotel room that he called home, he was lonely and blue.

"The Old Man's all wet," he thought. "Probably trying to smooth things over. I'm no newspaperman, might as well admit it. I'll go back home and work in dad's store."

Then, for some unaccountable reason, he recalled the note the Old Man received that day. "Wonder what it was? Suppose he's due for a raise. Why couldn't that happen to me?"

He then dropped off to sleep, and the next morning, after a fitful night, he awoke with a headache and an intense desire to tell the whole world to take a trip to a warmer climate.

Once in the office, he forgot his anger. Word must have spread that he'd soon be leaving, for everyone seemed to have a good word. They remembered their start in newsworld and were trying to make it easier for the kid.

Emory, today as every day recently, showed him his errors as he edited the youngest's stories, advising him and watching over him.

"Maybe this racket isn't so bad," he thought. "Now if they'll only change their minds about firing me."

Then it happened. Break or disaster, he didn't know which, but it was a change.

Paul Johnson, the reporter with whom George worked, was involved in a serious accident while returning from a week-end visit with his brother. He would be out for at least three months.

George was given Paul's beat because he knew best how to handle it, having worked on it on Paul's regular days off.

Finally a new man was hired to help him. He was beginning to feel a bit more normal again, although he still did most of the important work on both his own and Paul's beats.

On George's desk the next morning was a note to see Editor Thorne. "Here goes," he said to one of the other men. "Probably wants to gloat over me for a while before he drops the ax."

Thorne, however, surprised him; asked how he was coming and how he now liked the work.

"Whiting," he said. "I want you to know that we've all appreciated the way you've taken hold since Johnson's been out. You've helped us over a tight spot. But today your three weeks are up."

The reporter sat down in the chair across from Thorne's desk with a thud. This was really pouring vinegar over the sugar. Here it was; he should have known better than to expect the old warhorse to do anything decent. Then the managing editor continued:

"But I want you to forget it. We were letting you go for inefficiency, but you've shown us we were wrong. Monday, you can start on another beat with a five-dollar raise. You've earned it."

"But Mr. Thorne," George interrupted, "who's going to have my man wasn't a real newspaperman until after he'd been fired three times? Well, this is No. 3 for me. Now I can go places." Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Love without Music

SYNOPSIS

LINDA AVERY, receptionist at a New York hotel, is engaged to be married to RONALD STAFFORD, her childhood sweetheart, who has "tweaked his way to fame on a trumpet," but SARAH MARKLEY, wealthy glamor girl, is trying to capture Ronald for herself. Meanwhile

ROBERT BARTON, young engineer, strikes up a friendship with Linda. He introduces her to

TERRY ADAMS, publicity man, and Terry's sweetheart, CAROLINE PICKARD, who has been unable to find work.

YESTERDAY: Robert tells Linda the woman visiting him is Miss Nevitt, a famous actress now growing old. She had been engaged to Robert's uncle, but since his death has tried to force herself on Robert. She discovers Linda and Robert together on the girl's balcony and tells Linda "I'll know you . . . when we meet again." Next day Linda is to meet Ronnie for dinner.

CHAPTER NINE

LINDA FOUND Ronnie waiting for her in the Iridium room. The music was low and gentle, gay and inobtrusive. People looked happy. Mostly they were in twos. A man and a girl, a man and a girl.

Ronnie looked tired, but his eyes lighted with swift joy when she came toward him.

"You're the only nice thing about a devilish day," he said. "Linda, you're stunning!"

Then he forgot her clothes and studied her eyes.

"Still love me, my sweet?"

She nodded. "No decrease at all. Why?"

"Enough to marry me tonight, tomorrow, soon?"

This was what she had wanted him to say, but now that she heard the words she was afraid. There was not the assurance and strength in Ronnie's voice that should be there. Still . . . he was tired. His eyes were meeting her's honestly and his face was serious. Yet she was aware of some other influence.

She glanced down at the table and noticed a small gold vanity case. It contained the initials "S.M." Sarah Markley. So Sarah had been here with Ronnie until a few minutes ago. All of the time that she had waited for the telephone to ring, he had been chatting with Sarah. Maybe it wasn't his fault, maybe it was. She didn't try to reason it out. She said instead: "Sarah didn't give you much time to call me, did she?"

The gray eyes twinkled and Ronnie's laughter was wholehearted. Finally she joined him in it. "But she was here," she insisted. "And there I sat waiting for a ring, Ronnie, if I were still ten I'd box your ears."

He sobered and the weary look came back. "Wouldn't it be swell to be ten again? Linda, how do people get in such complications?"

She waited while the waiter put a tall lemonade in front of her. She sipped it slowly, then said: "Is that the matter, Ronnie?"

He nodded ruefully. "Sarah's a good kid, but she doesn't know you can't grab off men like you do bracelets or furs. Nobody ever taught her. And why she should decide to add my scalp is beyond my limited reasoning. But she's been proposing and, golly, I never had to say 'no' to a girl before."

"But you said it?" Her eyes danced with laughter. So it was Sarah who was the pursuer. Life was still a smooth road.

"In every way I know, but she's giving me time. Linda, I always intended to marry you a-yyaw, when I got around to it, so let's make it soon." His eyes lost their quizzical look. "I love you, darling. It isn't news to you—but I do."

The orchestra was going away, following a melody of song out of the world, trailing it across bright stars and shining meadows. Voices were a little lower as though the people in the room realized that time was hurrying and they had so much to say.

Ronnie was asking her to marry him just as she had hoped he would ever since she rode a bicycle at his side down the Virginia lanes, falling off now and then because the sandy-haired occupant of the other wheel went so fast. But he was using her as an escape from another girl. And maybe all of this would retard his career, and he would remember, years later, that if he had been patient his name could have stayed in bright lights. Oh, this was idiotic. He had asked her to marry him and Mr. Markley was a keen enough showman not to let his daughter influence him. Still—

"Let's go riding in the park," Ronnie was saying, pulling a bill from his pocket and leaving it on the table. "The atmosphere here isn't conducive to assent, is it?"

They found a hack, a horse-drawn, at the square across from the Plaza, and Ronnie told the driver to go through the park for an hour. There was no greenness in the land. Trees held back arms high and the ground was sodden. But somewhere a troubadour played a song of spring and the music floated down the paths.

"Well?" Ronnie asked, and kissed her.

Linda drew away. If he did that again her heart would crumble, her head would forget to send out directions, the year's waiting would be over. She loved him and he loved her, only—there was the Avery girl. When Ronnie put Sarah in her place, unmarried, love would have a better chance to succeed. Even now, though, she wondered at her own hesitation. She was afraid and didn't know why. Afraid for herself, afraid for Ronnie whom she adored.

Aloud she said, "Wouldn't it be better to wait until you're more secure professionally to marry? After all, I suppose it would be a blow to Sarah's pride if you flaunted another girl before her."

She waited. If Ronnie argued, entreated, overpowered her, then she would do as he wished. But if he hesitated—

"I'll climb without the Markley backing, my sweet, or I'm not much good. It's marriage, pronto. Oh, you darling idiot, don't you get it through your curly head that I love you?"

Always after Linda was to remember that ride. The moon came up and the early stars broke through and made the park a glittering, silver Paradise. A taxicab radio sent a love song down the lanes and the old carriage moved slower and slower.

When Ronnie left Linda at the outer door of the old brick house, with a promise to call later in the evening, she started up the long steps singing under her breath.

Even when Rob layd her at the bend in the stairs she did not pause. He belonged to another world. His words broke the spell. "The prima donna act of last night won't be repeated. I talked some sense into the lady and it seemed to work. I apologize again."

"It doesn't matter. It doesn't matter. Nothing matters. For I'm going to marry Ronnie! I hope the actress puts on her other scenes on the stage instead of troubling you."

Caroline was busy in the kitchenette. The odor of broiling steak came from behind the screen that protected the culinary department's privacy.

"How pretty you look," she told Linda. "Something especially nice happened? I adore steak, and since you told me to take charge and get fat I'm obeying. I've an avocado salad and hot biscuits and broccoli with Hollandaise."

Linda ate, still wrapped in a glow. She slipped into a yellow crepe housecoat to wait for Ronnie's telephone call. She didn't expect it until nearly 12, for rehearsals were long affairs. When Caroline came in from a neighborhood errand, with the morning editions of the tabloids, she leafed through one of them with casual interest. Suddenly she sat upright and her face paled. She read a story, then re-read it.

rus" from Lohengrin, and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gown in gleaming white satin fashioned with a fitted bodice and a short train. A taria of baby's breath, from which fell a fingertip veil of tulle, and a shower of bride's roses were further accents for the bride's ensemble.

Miss Elizabeth Hall, of Fairmont, an intimate friend and sorority sister of the bride, was maid-of-honor. She was gown in blue chiffon and carried Talisman roses.

Hudson L. Yost, Jr., of Berkeley Springs, was best man. Ushers were Lester N. Bolyard, of Terra Alta, brother of the bride, and Kenneth Yost, brother of the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony there was an informal reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Arnold, Romney, cousin of the bridegroom. With her sisters and the bridegroom assisting, the bride cut and served the tiered wedding cake. Immediately following the reception, the couple left for a short wedding trip. Traveling, Mrs. Yost wore a wine and white sheer print frock fashioned with a white redingote and completed with white accessories.

Mrs. Yost was graduated from Fairmont State Teachers college in 1938, receiving her A. B. degree in home economics. She was a member of Alpha Delta Chi sorority and was active in social and scholastic activities. She previously was employed as a teacher in the Preston county schools and attended West Virginia university during the summer term of 1939 when she worked on her Master's degree. She now is employed as home management supervisor of Morgan county under the Farm Security administration.

Mr. Yost attended Shepherd State Teachers college where he was a member of Theta Sigma Chi fraternity. He is principal of the Berkeley Springs graded school, a position he has held for several years and is an active member of the Young Men's Business club, holding offices in the organization.

Mr. and Mrs. Yost will make their home in the Martha Ruppenthal apartments on Fairfax street, Berkeley Springs.

A New Deal Plan That Is Not Taking Well

THE NEW DEAL PLAN to have all American youths, male and female, conscripted ostensibly for training in non-combatant duties in support of the army, is not taking with the people.

In their desperate search for proposals that might serve to divert popular attention from the New Deal fiasco and the third term menace, the crackpot division of the New Deal braintrust is busily at work perfecting this "plan," according to oblique hints thrown out by Mr. Roosevelt. He tells the press that he intends to submit the "plan" to Congress within a few weeks.

Have the people reached the stage of hysteria in which this proposal strikes them as sane and feasible?

The cost of maintaining a conscript army of American youths, numbering 2,000,000 or more, would run into the billions. Under the wasteful methods of the New Deal the cost would be multiplied.

This idea is borrowed from Hitler. It would Nazify young Americans and train them in the New Deal goosetep, so that they would be at the disposal of the New Deal dictator.

When Americans are ready to scrap their institutions and adopt those of Nazi Germany it will be time to conscript every boy and girl in the process of turning America into a nation of mechanized robots.

Mr. Roosevelt throws out this idea with his tongue in his cheek. If the people are fools enough to favor it, he has another opportunity to buy votes with public money. If they turn it down, he can disavow any serious intention to regiment the young, flick the ashes from his cigarette and resume his pursuit of a third term by whipping up the war scare in other directions.

Temporary Homes Are Sought For English War Children

BRIGADIER BRICE L. PHILLIPSON, commandant of the local Salvation Army corps, has received word from the Army's headquarters in London that temporary homes for English children are being sought throughout America for the duration of the war.

Here is a splendid call to a humane service that can be answered by childless families, by parents whose sons and daughters have moved away and left empty rooms behind them, or by those who seek a companion for a single son or daughter, or those who are not completely happy unless the voices of children are about them.

These are not cases of adoption, as the children are to be returned to their English homes after the war dangers are over. The age limit for the children is 14. Transportation will be provided by the parents of the children. The Salvation Army, as well as other organizations that are giving attention to these children, will make every effort to get the right children into the right homes. Families accepting children will be required to provide any medical attention in cases of illness.

If there are any families in Cumberland, or elsewhere in Allegany county, who would like to care for an English child for the war period, they can obtain particulars by applying to Brigadier Phillipson at the Salvation Army citadel.

Practical Way To Avert Risks in Buying

NOTHING perhaps has so universal an appeal to newspaper readers—which is to say every literate person from ten to a hundred—as the advertisements. Nor is this said in a spirit of disparagement of the other contents of newspapers.

A newspaper's primary function is to print the news. There was a time in the past when little else appeared in any newspaper. Advertisements were few and small, features of all kinds were still to be an innovation of the future.

But while one member of the family is most interested in the chronicles of local happenings, another in the news of sports events, another in the editorials, and still another in a feature or two, all read the advertisements. Reading the advertisements has become as much a habit with moderns as eating three meals a day.

Eating can be an expensive habit, however, while reading the announcements of business concerns is a thrifty habit. The advertisers who deliver their messages through the columns of this newspaper regularly, day after day, are reliable firms with which to deal. They are intensively interested in building customer good will, which is why they advertise. Ninety-nine per cent of the risk has been eliminated from any transaction when you deal with a regular advertiser.

Diversification For Cotton

DR. CLAUDIUS T. MURCHISON, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, in a speech at Waco, Tex., told the Cotton Research Council the other day that the future of the cotton industry depends on domestic consumption and urged that new uses for the fiber be found.

Dr. Murchison pointed out that Norway, Denmark, Holland, Belgium, Poland and Czechoslovakia probably are lost forever as markets for American cotton. Just how much territory the French people will be allowed to occupy and what liberty they will enjoy will depend on the final peace terms, which are not to be drawn up, according to Nazi authorities, until the British empire has been subjugated. It is not believed, however, that France will take nearly as much American cotton as in the past.

The fate of Great Britain is in the balance, but at best, according to Dr. Murchison, British spinners will never again be in the market for as much American cotton as they were before the war.

Finally, even Japan, according to the same authority, has passed the zenith of its demand for the American staple. In addition to all this, he adds, science itself has done more toward the development of substitutes for cotton than it has done toward the development of new uses for cotton.

The South has learned the folly of depending upon cotton as the one and only cash crop and is now making progress toward diversification, but it must still grow much cotton, and if it applies itself earnestly to the task of creating new uses for it and selling the American people on the idea of using cotton goods, there will be a market for large amounts of the staple.

New York Landmarks Are Disappearing

SENTIMENTAL PERSONS who dote on returning to old scenes—who like things as they were—had better hurry to New York city for a last fond look. Fast disappearing are many landmarks, to say nothing of many eyesores, including such monstrosities as the elevated railroads. The Sixth Avenue line went down last year and revealed for the first time to New Yorkers and visitors the magnificent sweep of one of the best known pavements in the world.

And now it is the turn of two other elevated lines, the Second Avenue and the Ninth Avenue, the latter the oldest rapid transit route in the city and the first elevated line in the world.

The passing of these lines may be mourned by sightseers, but it is cause for rejoicing by New Yorkers themselves, so great a reason for jubilation that many neighborhood clubs have made a festive occasion of the demise of a contraption which made day and night hideous on a number of important arteries of the biggest city on earth.

New ways of transportation of the teeming millions have brought sunshine back to the business places and homes of a district which for nearly three-fourths of a century had been hidden under man-made shadows of pillars and posts and roadway of the El.

Much can be and has been said for and against the meaning to mankind of the developments of the machine age, but there is no denying that the newest machinery of modern transportation brings not only greater facility of communication but also, in the instance of these New York avenues, greater comfort to big city folk.

Timely Warning For Farmers

WITH THE COMING of mid-summer and harvest time, farmers are warned against accidents—practically all of which can be avoided if proper precautions are taken, according to Ray W. Carpenter, specialist in agricultural engineering for the University of Maryland Extension Service.

He points out that one of the most common accidents which kills and cripples many persons at this time a year is the breaking of hay ropes. The trip rope often becomes worn where it connects to the fork or slings and when the rope is pulled hard or with a jerk it will break at the worn spot, causing the operator to fall to the barn floor or hard ground. Still another common accident is for the old, worn hoisting rope to snap when the forkload of hay is halfway up to the track, allowing the load or fork to fall on the individual below.

Mr. Carpenter says the only sure way to avoid these accidents is to inspect carefully all ropes, hooks and pulleys before harvest time because, no matter what the original quality, this equipment is constantly subject to wear and tear, especially if it is outdoors—as it often is for many weeks at a time. It is emphasized that a broken hook or pulley, flying through the air, will kill and cripple as effectively as a bullet.

As Mr. Carpenter points out, the cost of a new hay rope or pulley is a small price to pay for the privilege of living a normal life span.

Children no longer need worry about what they'll do when they grow up. They will pay taxes.

What this country needs for defense is plenty of anti-third-term equipment.

Once We Were Friends

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Suddenly I remember that the man who was once my friend is my friend no more.

When we were young we were very close. We told each other our secrets we'd have told to no one else. We opened our hearts to each other. . . . But we wouldn't do that now. We're not close now. We've lost each other, drifted apart.

Should I try to bring him back, try to rivet the two of us together in friendship again?

You may say, "Yes" . . . I say "No!"

I say "No" not because I would not wish for his friendship again but because I do not believe it possible to turn back the clock for two human beings.

We did not quarrel. We changed. For a year or two we were close and then time and circumstance moved us apart. We became two human beings who could not easily be friends. . . . I do not blame him, criticize him. But neither shall I take any of the fault, if there is fault, upon myself. . . . It happened, and that must be the end of it.

But have I no regret for this friendship that passed from my life—no grief for a relationship that grew rich fruit and now is barren except in memory? . . . Yes, when I think of it, I feel a vague melancholy, a sense of loss.

But I know it would be futile to try to bring it back to life. I have seen too much of such vain endeavor, such desperate effort. And I am convinced when a man tries to accomplish that impossibility, he is doomed to failure, and instead of knitting two spirits together again, he complicates their lives the more.

So, when we meet we speak in friendly wise, we talk of the old days and comment on the new; but make no valiant gestures toward reviving that ardent friendship . . . And I think the two of us are wise.

Johnson Sticks To Rebuttal on Tin and Rubber

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Some of its esteemed contemporaries do not agree with this column's rebuttal of the constant claims that we are dependent on the British and Dutch East Indies for rubber and tin and that it was only the concurrence of England that has enabled us to maintain the Monroe Doctrine.

Hugh S. Johnson

Nobody has contested the facts that we rubber than we buy or, that by using conservation, substitution and Bolivian tin, we could get by without East Indian tin. But it is said that it would be inconvenient, take a long time and cost too much. I challenge all of this. As to rubber, the fact is that if we, who use fifty-five per cent of all the world's rubber, turned to mass production on that vast tonnage, it would cost no more than the present price—which is low.

Price Control Possible

But rubber and tin are subject to a monopoly by cartel. In war, price can be controlled. The price of rubber can be, and has been jlimmed up to many times its present level. It is highly important to escape from this danger—not to mention the boost to American employment possible in creating this new and constructive industry.

Quite apart from all this, long ago it was reported by the president's own National Resources committee that for less than the price of two battleships, we could lay in enough East Indian tin and rubber to make us independent of foreign sources for the reasonably expected duration of any war. This administration didn't do it. It seems to have some strange reluctance to take Uncle Sam's whiskers out of that revolting wringer in the Far East. Instead of buying vital tin and rubber, it bought billions of dollars worth of useless silver and unnecessary gold.

Dangerous Dependence

The British decree that some of these products can be paid for only in dollars is understandable—but its effect is to curtail South American purchasing power for our products. Such utter dependence on another country is dangerous in both economic and war.

There is no doubt that British resistance to territorial grabs of Western Hemisphere by other countries has helped us maintain the Monroe Doctrine. But events are daily proving what this column has always insisted—that in war no nation can depend on any other. It is simply not true that Britain has respected the Monroe doctrine herself or that we could not, for many years, have maintained it.

England Involved

There have been four principal threats or actual encroachments on the Monroe Doctrine. England was involved in all of them. She was original party to the worst, which was the seizure of Mexico and attempt to establish the empire of Maximilian while we were fighting the Civil war for our very existence as a nation. She was only prevented from seizing a piece of Venezuela by our outright threat of war. While there are claims on both sides of the argument, Argentina still vigorously asserts that the present British occupancy of the Falkland Islands is a seizure of Argentine possessions contrary to the Monroe Doctrine—and that we connived at it. Guatemala makes the same claim about British occupancy of Honduras. Very recently England refused to accept a Guatemala arbitration proposal in which Mr. Roosevelt was named as umpire.

Painful Both Ways

The British want Belize and Falklands for the same reason they want Gibraltar and Suez. One controls the Nicaragua canal route. The other controls the long route around the Horn. If anything happened to the Panama canal, the Falklands could become a critical danger point to us.

It is painful to write pieces like

CAPTAIN OF THE PORT

Comm. Lester E. Wells

The world war title of "Captain of the Port" was revived and conferred upon Commander Lester E. Wells as the United States Coast Guard took over control of the Port of Philadelphia. Commander Wells will be in absolute command of all shipping and related shore activities surrounding the port, war-safety regulations more rigid than those enforced in 1917.

THE "GET SOMETHING ON WILLKIE" COMMITTEE

Convention at Chicago Is Approached By the Democrats with Little Zest

By MARK SULLIVAN

WASHINGTON, July 7.—A week from Monday the Democratic national convention will meet, to name its candidate and write its platform. Subsequent to that, the Republican nominee, Mr. Wendell Willkie, will make his acceptance speech—make it with the knowledge of what the Democrats have said in their platform, and whom they have nominated. Later still, the as yet unknown Democratic nominee will make his acceptance speech. Thereafter, beginning presumably about the middle of August, the issues will be joined, the candidates will confront each other, a historic campaign will be on.

Business Men Should Enter Politics

So Holds James Scott Temper in Forbes Magazine Contribution

Business men should take an active part in local and national politics, declares James Scott Kemper, new president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and a man who practices exactly what he preaches. "One of the weaknesses of our present efforts to make readjustments toward prosperity in this country of abundant resources," says Kemper in Forbes Magazine, "arises out of this fact: The participation of the business men in political affairs has not been as efficient as his participation in the internal affairs of his business. "Great advances have been made in mechanical devices. But comparable advances have not been made in the character and efficiency of the administration of public service.

"The business man is well informed on political generalities; but he knows little of the structure and mechanics of the machine that administers a most important phase of his own business—that part of his business which represents public service, regulating his action or providing facilities for his operation. "He knows something about the tariff question. He knows something about big names in political parties. He favors economy. But he forgets that our political course is charted from his local precinct and not from his state capital or from Washington. Political leaders at the seat of government may try to sway opinion at home, but the opinion at home can sway the political leader much more quickly and effectively.

"The business man is a citizen with a job and he differs from other citizens with jobs only in the degree of his responsibility. He is responsible not only for himself but also for his property or for the management of the property of somebody else. He is an employer and so he becomes responsible for the direction and guidance of other people. There isn't any theory of representative government that does not increase a man's responsibility as a business man, and so his participation in public affairs must be enlarged to keep pace with the enlargement of his business responsibilities. Otherwise, the public services of government will not keep pace with business in efficiency, and this weak cog can cause the destruction of the entire business system.

War Motive Seen

Another motive was assigned for Mr. Roosevelt's desire for a late convention. The later the convention, the more progress the war in Europe would have made toward whatever was to be its conclusion; and the better able would Mr. Roosevelt and the convention be to take, about the war, a position which would "stand up" until election day. This point has been elevated both parties. Both knew that the rapidity of events in Europe might cause a party platform written in June or July to become meaningless, or worse, by the time of the election in November.

The Republicans quickly realized that they were in no position to "jockey" with the Democrats about convention dates—in any competition of postponement, the Democrats could win. Perforce the Republicans fixed June 24th, not materially later than their customary date. Just as soon as the Republicans named June 24th, Chairman Farley named July 15 for the Democrats.

Of No Great Benefit

Thus, at the end of the maneuvering, the Democratic convention is to meet only about three weeks later than it would have met had precedent been followed. The extra three weeks are of no great benefit to Mr. Roosevelt. He has little more of the materials for his great decision than he would have had in any circumstances. True, he knows now who the Republican nominee is, but he would have known that anyhow—granted what was always certain, that the Republican convention would come first. Extended time has robbed whatever Mr. Roosevelt does of much of the dramatic quality it might once have had. That he could have the nomination was known early in April, after the disastrous defeat of Mr. Garner in the Wisconsin and Illinois primaries. Any event, even one so unprecedented as the two attempted violations of the two term tradition, loses some of its dramatic force when postponed for nearly three months after it is known to be possible. Whatever Mr. Roosevelt now does—whether acceptance of a third nomination, or renunciation of it—can be theatrical, but not dramatic. "Theatrical" is the word for it, because it will proceed wholly from one man, will be a thing made by one man, staged by one man.

From the People

The other word "dramatic," fits the nomination of Mr. Willkie by the Republicans, because it proceeded from the crowd, the people; it was, so to speak, an act of nature; it was unexpected, it had the dramatic quality of surprise, accompanied by quick realization that it had deep significance. In the competition for dramatic effect, the rivalry in showmanship, Mr. Roosevelt loses—unless he can conjure up for the Democratic convention something not now possible to envisage.

The Democrats realize this. They approach their convention with no great zest. Taking of the nomination by Mr. Roosevelt will be no surprise. Renunciation by him will force on the Democrats a condition they would not have courted. Because Mr. Roosevelt has kept himself to the front so long, other candidates have had practically no chance to develop.

Factographs

Blondes, because their scalps and hair textures are finer, lose their hair more rapidly than either brunettes or red-heads, although they have double or treble the amount of hair possessed by either of the latter.

Bear Creek, in North Carolina, was so named after Squire Boone and his famous son Daniel killed 93 bears in one winter they lived near the stream.

One year to know what really took place in "The Singular Tragedy of the Atkinson Brothers at Trincomalee," or to learn more of "The Adventure of the Amateur Mendicant Society" whose members held a luxurious club in the lower vault of a furniture warehouse. I would walk miles to get the truth of "The Singular Adventure of the Grice Patersons in the Island of Uffa," of "Colonel Warburton's Madness," of "The Adventure of Ricketts of the Club Foot and his Abominable Wife."

Magical Powers

Not even the observation of a Holmes or the acumen of a Dr. Joseph Bell could supply, one feels, key to the mysteries described by Mr. Charles Fort's in a book I came across the other day, "Wild Talents." The wild talents Mr. Fort alludes to are what he believes to be the latent, magical powers of the human mind, powers that have been neglected or imperfectly controlled. These wild talents, growing in the mind like weeds, have been responsible, he assumes, for innumerable mysteries of accident or crime; for occurrences which have been utterly baffling to the public and the police. He assumes that some persons, perhaps far more than one might think likely, possess mental powers akin to witchcraft. He tells the story of the man they could not hang.

On the twenty-third of February, in the year 1885, John Lee, a laborer, who had murdered an old woman for her money, was led from his cell, in the penitentiary at Exeter, England, to be hanged. They draped the hangman's noose around his neck and stood him on the trapdoor of the scaffold. The bolt was drawn, but the trapdoor did not fall. John Lee stood there with the noose around his neck. They tinkered with the bolt and investigated the trapdoor. Everything was in perfect order. Once more the sheriff of Exeter waved his hand. Once more the bolt was drawn. And once more John Lee stood upon the immovable trapdoor, unharmed. The sheriff ordered him back to his cell.

Sheriff Thwarted

Angry and upset, the sheriff called upon a warder to stand upon the trapdoor, not of course, with a noose around his neck, but with his hands clinging to the rope. The bolt was drawn. The door fell and down dropped the warder as he should have dropped, as John Lee should have dropped. Again and again they led John Lee from his cell in the old stone prison back to the bleak, stark scaffold.

For the third time the sheriff of Exeter raised his hand as a signal for the bolt securing the trapdoor to be drawn. The bolt was drawn, easily and smoothly. But the trapdoor did not fall. John Lee still stood unchangeable. For the fourth and last time, the sheriff waved his hand. The bolt was drawn. The trapdoor, half-an-inch of oak between John Lee, the murderer, and the death decreed, stood as fixed and immovable as solid rock. The sheriff gave it up.

The matter was debated in the House of Commons. But execution was not attempted again. Lee's sentence was commuted to imprisonment for life and, after a few years, and nobody quite knows why, he was turned loose. Are there, indeed, such latent human powers, primitive, animal powers, that can defy the laws of space and matter? The record is certainly startling: the woman they could not move, the man they could not drown, the man they could not shoot, the man they could not hang.—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Mysteries Yet Lie In Great Stories Of Conan Doyle

By EDWIN C. HILL

Ten years after the passing of the creator of Sherlock Holmes, his widow, Lady Conan Doyle, follows him to that bourne where one may suppose that the great detective is enjoying the tranquility that life denied him. Six years after Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, a spiritualist, as well as author, departed this life in 1930, Lady Conan Doyle was convinced that she had received a message from her late husband, and subsequently she devoted most of her time to the task of demonstrating what appeared to her as the truth of his spirit beliefs.

One wishes, with all possible respect, that the author of some of the best detective mysteries ever written had communicated to Lady Conan Doyle the essence, at least of the innumerable fascinating, challenging mystery-story titles to be found, as allusions, throughout his published works.

Unsolved Mysteries

Millions would be awake of nights to read what really occurred in "The Case of Wilson, the Notorious Canary Trainer," "The Delicate Affair of the Reigning Family of Holland," "The Incredible Mystery of Mr. James Phillimore," who, stepping back into his own house to get his umbrella, was never more seen in this world. Still other untold tales are "The Affair of the Politician, the Lighthouse and the Trained Cormorant," "The Strange Case of Isadora Persano," who was found stark, staring mad, with a match box which contained a worm unknown to science. Conan Doyle is gone, but Sherlock Holmes lives in a peculiarly definite sense; as real as D'Artagnan or Cyrano de Bergerac.

Firemen's Convention Opens with Memorial Services

George Eichhorn Presides over Roll Call

Goodwill Fire Company and Auxiliary Attend Services in Body

"Dying To Live" Is Topic of Sermon by The Rev. Lewis F. Ransom

LOANACONING, July 7.—George Eichhorn, Goodwill Fire company's general chairman for the Maryland State Firemen's Association convention, which is being held here, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, July 10, 11 and 12, tonight at 7:30 o'clock officially opened a week of celebration here when he presided over the roll call of the honored dead of the company, at the Methodist church.

The annual religious service followed the roll call, with the sermon being preached by the Rev. Lewis F. Ransom, pastor, who used as his topic, "Dying To Live." Members of the Goodwill Fire company, No. 1, sponsors of the state convention, and members of the Ladies auxiliary, marched to the church in a body to attend the service.

Preceding the religious service, memorial services for honored dead were opened by the singing of the anthem, "Open the Gates of the Temple," by the church choir. The fire company then was called to attention and General Chairman Eichhorn, read the names of the deceased members as the church rolled with the reading of each name. Mrs. Lewis F. Ransom, wife of the minister, then sang a vocal solo, "Hold Thou My Hand." The company remained standing until the names were read to complete this portion of the service.

The honored dead: Active members, George Poole, John Fisher, H. Robertson, Samuel Barber, James Martin, Robert Glenn, Charles Humbertson, Blane Thompson, Charles Lyons, David Cuthbert, Harrison Beeman, Gustave Eichhorn, Abram Laird, William Richardson. Honorary members: William Wheeler, William McIndoe, T. Miller, T. Cecil Miller and Frank Doolan.

Tomorrow and Tuesday the celebration will be carried on with a street carnival. Wednesday, opening day of the convention, will be devoted to the registration of the delegates and the first session of the convention, to be held at the Central High school.

Plan Benefit Movie

Loanaconing during the past week boxed its contribution to the war relief fund, being sponsored by the American Red Cross, to $380.50. It was announced by general chairman, John Byrnes, that a benefit movie would be shown in the San Juan theatre, Tuesday, July 23. Benjamin H. Evans, owner and manager of the theater has donated some for the showing.

Collection boxes had been placed in the business places of the city for the past several weeks, but as yet no report has been made concerning the amount they contain. The boxes will be collected this latter part of this week and the report made. It was stated by those in charge.

Those contributing this week were: Garfield Tent, Independent Order of Rechabites, $2.50; Emma (Continued on Page Three)

Red Cross Fund To Get Proceeds Of Card Party

Benefit Affair Scheduled Tomorrow Afternoon in Frostburg

FROSTBURG, July 7.—The Red Cross emergency fund will receive the proceeds of a card party to be held Tuesday, 2 p. m., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Marshall Stewart, Frost avenue. According to Mrs. J. C. Cobey, head of the local committee collecting donations for the Red Cross, Frostburgers have already contributed $450 of the community's $900 quota. It planned to raise $100 weekly until the entire $900 is secured.

Among the recent contributions received are the following: Gleason Sunday school class of First Methodist church, $10; Eastern Star, $5; Community club, $10; Knights of Columbus, $5; Masonic fraternity, $10; Rotary club, $5; and Black Eyed Susan troop, Frostburg Girl scouts, $48.90. The Red Cross girls raised $15 at a dance and the remainder was collected at local theaters.

Individual contributions are not being made public, this is in compliance with requests made by many of the donors. Mrs. Cobey is asking that contributions be made as soon as possible. Fraternal and civic groups who have not as yet contributed will be solicited.

Plan Family Reunion

The Glass family, pioneer residents of Garrett county, will organize a family reunion committee at the first reunion of the family which is scheduled for July 21 at the picnic grove of A. A. Glass, Cove hill, three miles south of Keyser's ridge in Garrett county. Members of the family from Allegany and Garrett counties will sponsor the affair which also will be attended by descendants now living in more distant localities.

One of the principal speakers will be the Rev. Mr. Kunkel, a Lutheran minister of Pittsburgh, who formerly preached at the Lutheran churches at Accident, Cove and Friendsville, Md. The Accident Cornet band will have charge of the refreshment concession and will also render a concert in connection with the reunion.

Masons Pass Through

A large group of Free Masons from Mount Moriah lodge, No. 77, Anderson, Ind., passed through here in a large bus Friday on their way to Alexandria, Va., with two candidates who were to be given Masonic degrees Saturday evening in the home lodge of George Washington, first president of the United States. There were thirty-nine persons in the group. An officer of the lodge stated that the idea of conferring degrees in the ancient city of Alexandria is taking hold in the Middle West. He said that the lodge will be scheduled providing the permission of the grand lodge of the various states could be secured.

Frostburg Briefs

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Stevens will entertain Thursday evening at their cottage on the South Branch of the Potomac river in honor of the members of the Gleasons Sunday school class of First Methodist church and their husbands. The affair will be a basket picnic and those planning to attend will meet 5:30 p. m., at the church for the trip.

The Centurian Missionary Circle of St. Paul's Lutheran church will meet Tuesday evening, 7:30 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Mae Wilson, Hill street.

The Arion band will hold a rehearsal Monday evening, 7:30 o'clock, to prepare a program for its appearance at Loanaconing next Friday with the Frostburg Fire department.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Taccino, Mt. Savage, announce the birth of a son at the Miners' hospital, last Thursday.

The Rev. John Samuel, Bedford, Pa., a recent graduate from the Lutheran Theological seminary, Gettysburg, Pa., occupied the pulpit of St. Paul's Lutheran church today for the Rev. Walter V. Simon who was in Shepherdstown, W. Va., attending the dedication of a church of which he is a former pastor.

Brothers and Sisters Are Married In Double Wedding at Winchester

Four Londonderry Township Young People Figure in Ceremony

HYNDMAN, Pa., July 7.—A beautiful and impressive double wedding was solemnized yesterday at the Methodist parsonage, Winchester, Virginia, with four Londonderry township young people as the participants, brothers and sisters. Miss Doris Stair became the bride of Paul Haines, and Miss Rosemary Haines became the bride of Allan Clark Stair. A double-ring ceremony was used. Immediately after the ceremony, both couples returned to Cook's Mill, near Hyndman, where a sumptuous wedding dinner was given in their honor by the parents of two of these young people, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Haines. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Haines will reside in Baltimore, while Mr. and Mrs. Allan Stair will make their home with the bride's parents. The elder Mr. Haines is conductor on a shuttle freight that operates on the B. & O. between Cumberland and the Celanese plant. His daughter, Rosemary, was a member of the 1940 class of graduates of Hyndman High school. The father of the other two young people, J. William Stair, is proprietor of one of the largest dairy farms in Londonderry township, located at Stringtown. It is known as the "Blue Spring Dairy."

West Virginia Business Appears Headed for Banner Year

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 7.—(P.) West Virginia business — on the basis of merchant reports and a five-month 1940 industrial payroll higher even than in the 1937 "boom" period — appeared headed today for a banner year.

Close upon the report of a general upturn from the State Chamber of Commerce, the Workmen's Compensation commission listed a January-May wage total for industries of $14,478,338.

Coal, steel and chemical companies reported large gains.

For May alone, the wages paid by subscribers to the state fund amounted to $32,710,833, thirty-three per cent more than was disbursed in May, 1939.

The five-month total represented an increase of $32,806,567 over 1939, $30,642,766 over 1938 and $3,231,922 over 1937, which has been classed as one of the best of the recent years.

Coal, in comparison with 1939, paid out nearly $20,000,000 more in wages. The figure was $62,952,775. The steel payroll increased more than $1,000,000 to $10,993,605 and that for the chemical industry nearly $1,500,000 to $5,841,597.49.

West Virginia Business Appears Headed for Banner Year

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 7.—West Virginia business — on the basis of merchant reports and a five-month 1940 industrial payroll higher even than in the 1937 "boom" period — appeared headed today for a banner year.

Close upon the report of a general upturn from the State Chamber of Commerce, the Workmen's Compensation commission listed a January-May wage total for industries of $14,478,338.

Coal, steel and chemical companies reported large gains.

For May alone, the wages paid by subscribers to the state fund amounted to $32,710,833, thirty-three per cent more than was disbursed in May, 1939.

The five-month total listed represented an increase of $32,806,567 over 1939, $30,642,766 over 1938 and $32,921,922 over 1937, which has been classed as one of the best of the recent years.

Coal, in comparison with 1939, paid out nearly $20,000,000 more in wages. The figure was $62,952,775. The steel payroll increased more than $1,000,000 to $10,993,605 and that for the chemical industry nearly $1,500,000 to $5,841,597.49.

Tucker County GOP Nominates Allan Bolton

Delegates to Judicial Convention Will Be Named Saturday

PARSONS, W. Va., July 7.—Thirteen of the Tucker county Republican executive committee met Friday afternoon, at Republican headquarters with Chairman Wayne K. Pitt presiding and named Allan Bolton, as a candidate for Prosecuting attorney in this county. Other county officers, surveyor, constables and justice of the peace for the seven districts will be elected by the committee at a later date. Republican headquarters are located in the building occupied by the Friendly market.

The committee agreed to set Saturday, July 13 as the date for the districts to select their delegates to the Republican Judicial convention to be held at Charleston, August 14. Citizens will meet at the following places with committee members on Saturday, to select the delegates: Blackfork district, court house at Parsons, at 2 p. m.; St. George district, St. George school at 3 p. m.; Fairfax district, at Thomas Fire hall at 7:30 o'clock; Davis district, at Davis city hall, at 7:30 o'clock; Dry Fork district, at Planagan Hill school, at 8 o'clock; Clover district, at Clover Run school, at 7:30 o'clock; Licking district, at Licking school, at 7:30 o'clock.

The executive committee has as its recently installed officers: Wayne K. Pitt, chairman; Ernest L. Moon, vice chairman; Mrs. Cleon Raess, associate chairman; D. W. Thurston, secretary; and Hubert B. Lake, treasurer. It has as its members a man and a woman from each district, as follows: Blackfork, Osee Bible and Mrs. Laura Vere Lambert; Clover, Carl T. Sturms and Mrs. Nellie England; Davis, Ed Miller, Jr., and Mrs. Earl Deshler; Dry Fork, C. U. Bonner and Mrs. Carrie Bennett; Fairfax, Robert Cline and Mrs. Idella White; St. George, Alston White and Mrs. Laura Hile.

The committee will meet at a later date in July, at Republican headquarters to elect county officers not elected in the primary election, for the general election this fall.

Merchants Give Prizes for Red Cross Party

St. Patrick's Hall in Mt. Savage Scene of Games Party Tonight

MT. SAVAGE, July 7.—The Red Cross association will hold a games party tomorrow night in St. Patrick's hall for the benefit of the war relief fund. Special prizes have been donated by local and out-of-town business concerns. These feature awards include a lawn set, glider, radio, groceries and other valuable and useful articles. The committee in charge of the affair consists of Harry Poland, Patrick A. Fannon, Anthony Monahan, Misses Maud Houck, Jarilla Henckel and Nellie Taney. Girls garbed in Red Cross uniforms will act as hostesses.

Miss Dorothy Blake and Miss Mary Sullivan will have charge of the candy table; Misses Lillian Deffenbaugh, Mary Lou Pressman, Janet Wilson, Peggie Adams, Georgiana Nader, Margaret MacNamee, Kathleen Walsh and Cornelia Nader will serve refreshments and Miss Catherine O'Rourke and Miss Rosemary Noonan will have charge of the "hot dog" stand. The purpose of the games party is to raise the sum of $100 for the present drive for war relief funds. The local quota is $200 and half of the amount already has been acquired.

Girl Scouts Make Preparations For Annual Camp at Pavia, Pa.

Next week local Girl Scouts will turn back the pages of history to the time of the French and Indian war, for Camp Calcuttuc, the old Indian name for Cumberland, will open at Pavia, Penna., on the fourteenth, for the first of the two one-week periods. Camp will be again divided into the five units, Indian, Plantation, Fur Traders, Red Coats and Settlers, signifying the types of people who inhabited Cumberland at that time. The girls are located according to age and interest in these units.

An added feature this year will be definite instructions in taking and developing pictures, by Miss Jane Showare. A dark room has been built in the Nature building. Camp activities will again include arts and crafts, emphasizing sketching, woodcarving, leather work, and the drying and weaving of yarns, to carry out the spirit of the past. Sports and games include; tennis, volleyball, baseball, badminton, tether ball, ping pong and instructions in swimming, diving and life saving. Outdoor cooking also will be emphasized, with units four and five already completely equipped with dishes, silverware and cooking utensils. In the recent Girl Scout cookie sale $500 was set aside for a permanent camp, the balance was used to purchase permanent equipment to be added to year by year, until a complete camp can be outfitted. The equipment at Camp Calcuttuc now is jointly owned by the Girl Scouts of Johnston, Penna., Altoona, Penna., and Cumberland.

As the camp can only accommodate 120 girls, and seventy-six are already registered for the first week and sixty-four for the second, those desiring to go are asked to register as soon as possible, at Girl Scout headquarters, 76 Greene street.

The staff will leave here on Thursday, for a three-day pre-camp training course before the girls arrive on the fourteenth. Any one who desires transportation to camp must call headquarters before the tenth to make reservations.

The staff includes: Mrs. Evangeline Twigg Coulehan, nurse; Miss Pauline Fisher, counselor in charge of woodlore, assisted by Miss Joan Kimmel, of Keyser; Miss Dorothy McCrackin, of Frostburg, and Miss Edna Elliott, of Lonaconing, are the camp craft counselors. Miss Elizabeth Wilson Jenkins of Frostburg, Miss Helen Porter, of Lonaconing, and Miss Jane Showare, of Cumberland, are counselors of arts and crafts. Miss Harriett Brode, of Frostburg, and Mrs. Mabel S. Riddle, of Spencer, Va., are counselors for dramatics and story telling. Mrs. Peter William Smith, of Cumberland, is unit leader. Miss Gretchen Reighard and Miss Ann Smith are in charge of swimming. Miss Marie Hardesty, of Reisterstown, will be dietician, and will arrive here today to arrange for supplies, all of which will be bought locally.

Married at St. Patrick's

Miss Kathleen Edna May, daughter of Mrs. Victor A. May, 404 1/2 North Center street, and Vincent Paul Miller, of Mt. Savage, were married Saturday morning at an 8 o'clock Nuptial High Mass, in St. Patrick's Catholic church, North Center street, by the Reverend Francis McKewen.

The altar was decorated with snapdragons and gladioli. Miss Jane Shaw sang the Ave Maria, accompanied by Miss Velma Coffey.

Miss Jane Bell was maid of honor. Francis Mulligan, of Mt. Savage, was best man.

The bride wore a gown of white lace on princess lines, with short sleeves and train, a coronet of orange blossoms held the veil, and she carried a bouquet of bride's roses, orchids and babybreath.

Miss Bell wore an aqua-marine French lace gown, with a shoulder length veil falling from a coronet of pink rose buds, and carried pink roses and babybreath.

Mrs. Miller attended Catholic Girls Central High school.

Mr. Miller attended St. Patrick's school, Mt. Savage, and was graduated from La Salle Institute, this city. He is employed by the Equitable Life Insurance company.

A wedding breakfast was served following the ceremony, at the Golden Gate Tea room, South Center street, to relatives and friends.

Following a wedding trip to Philadelphia and Atlantic City, Mr. and Mrs. Miller will be at home at 404 1/2 North Center street.

To Honor Miss Woodring

Miss Grace Woodring will be honor guest at a bridge luncheon to be given by Mrs. R. E. L. Bowie, at 1 o'clock tomorrow at her home 622 Washington street.

Miss Woodring is visiting her brother-in-law and sister the Reverend and Mrs. William A. Eisenberger, 222 Washington street.

Girls Attend Camp

One hundred and three Girl Scouts and twelve non-scouts attended Girl Scout Day camp four days last week on Haystack mountain. The campers arrived at 9 o'clock in the morning and as the camp set-up is exactly like the established camp, in five units, Indian, Plantation, Fur trade, Red Coats and Settlers, each having their own program and cooking their dinner out of doors, they were kept busy until time to go home at four o'clock.

Except that they did not sleep out of doors this gave the girls an idea of what real outdoor living is like.

"The Authority on Authorities"

READING THE LEAD

WHEN NO suit bidding has influenced the matter, an opening honor lead against a No Trump contract proclaims possession usually of what students call an "honor combination." In this situation that means the possession of at least three of the highest six cards of the suit, at least two of which are "touching honors." The conventional lead is from the touching honors. It is the top of the touchers, except in the case of ace-king, when the king is chosen. The principal value of such leads comes from the ability of a good partner to read the holding of both the leader and the declarer much more accurately than could be done with a fourth-best lead.

North	East
♠ A 8 5	♠ 10 4 3
♥ A 6 2	♥ 9 8 6
♦ Q J 7 6	♦ 10 5 4
♣ 10 7 4	♣ 9 6 4 2

If South bid 1-No Trump, North 3-No Trumps and you have the East hand shown, study of an honor lead, in conjunction with your own holding and the North dummy, can be extremely informative.

A lead of the spade Q makes it clear your partner also has the J, has not the K, and possesses one other "honor combination" card, which can't be anything but the 9. So declarer has the K with one or two guards.

The heart J lead proclaims possession of the 10 and another "honor combination" card, not the Q, so it is positively the K. Declarer would surely have exactly three to the Q.

Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The diamond K lead advertises clearly that the declarer has three little cards, with no stopper, your partner holding A-K-9 and a little one.

The club Q shows also the J and A, so declarer has the K guarded once or twice, probably the latter. There is just one standard "honor combination" lead which reaches lower into the deck than the 9. That is the J-10-8 combination, from which the J is led.

Note that A-Q-10, A-Q-9, A-J-9 and K-J-9 have no touching honors, therefore are not adapted to an honor lead. Since a fourth best from those conventionally denies three "honor combinations" cards, including touchers, it helps you to read a fourth-best lead more accurately. Also, with the hand shown, lead of the spade J, heart 10 or club J, not being in natural sequences, must be a short suit lead, easily readable to you.

Garner's Name To Be Presented

WASHINGTON, July 7. (P)—Managers for Vice President Garner said that his name would be put before the Democratic convention for the presidential nomination.

Garner himself will not attend the convention, but his managers, E. B. Germany and Mrs. Clara Driscoll, said in a statement:

"Mr. Garner's name will be presented at the Chicago convention. Texas sixty-four votes are instructed for him and he will receive substantial support from many other states."

Fill or Slim For a "Figger" Trim

By HELEN FOLLETT

LADY FASHION is a good trainer. She snaps the whip and the sisters go dancing round the beauty ring. She has ordained that the pretty ones have normal figures, with trim waist lines and hips that are not hippy, if you know what we mean. In order to qualify, even the lady ones are doing their exercises.

Skinny slims must fill out, femmes who are built like cream puffs must shuffle off excess upholstery. Emaciation, when not caused by ill health, is the result of wrong eating habits, too many pickles, too much lettuce, not enough good chow containing all the varied elements. A quart of milk a day, rich with cream, will bring good reports from the bath room scales.

Now that ears are out in the world to be observed by every eye, don't let your's be poor little orphans. When you put on your make up, don't pass them by. How many times have you seen the gardenia complexion hand in hand with newly scrubbed ears that shine like a mirror? That's a beauty slip; that's what it is.

Use the powder pad lightly, not only on the forehead portions but on the cheeks. See that the powder goes into the little shell-like grooves. Touch the lobes lightly with the rouge pad, then give

Mrs. Barnard is president of the club. The following are the committee in charge of arrangements for the picnic: Mrs. J. W. 8796, chairman, Mrs. E. G. Ziler, Mrs. W. L. Smith, Mrs. E. S. Tracy, Mrs. Ruth Hopcraft, Mrs. E. Kaylor, Mrs. J. L. Fisher and Mrs. William Allee.

Honored with Showers

Among the recent parties honoring Mrs. Vincent Miller, who before her marriage Saturday was Mrs. Kathleen Edna May, was a miscellaneous shower, given last week at Miss Jane Bell, at her home 415 Beall street. Miss Bell was Mrs. Miller's maid of honor. Games were played and refreshments served.

Miss Madelyn Dyche and Miss Evelyn Sheetz were hostesses at a pre-nuptial miscellaneous shower, also in honor of Mrs. Miller. The party which was a surprise to the bride, was given at the home of Miss Dyche, 513 Maryland avenue.

Why Good Grooming requires keeping DARK ARCS DRY

If you still are tolerating perspiration under the arms, just listen to facts about hygiene in these dark arcs that any doctor can give you:

It's uncleanly! That repellent under-arm odor signals decay! That perspiration which damages gowns is decomposed!

Because the dark arcs are closed to purifying air and light, perspiration decays before it evaporates.

Perspiration, carrying cast off body wastes, pours out on the skin, mingling with dead skin scales, and micro-organisms. Decay begins. Acids form. Fungus may grow and bacteria multiply. Rancid odors appear.

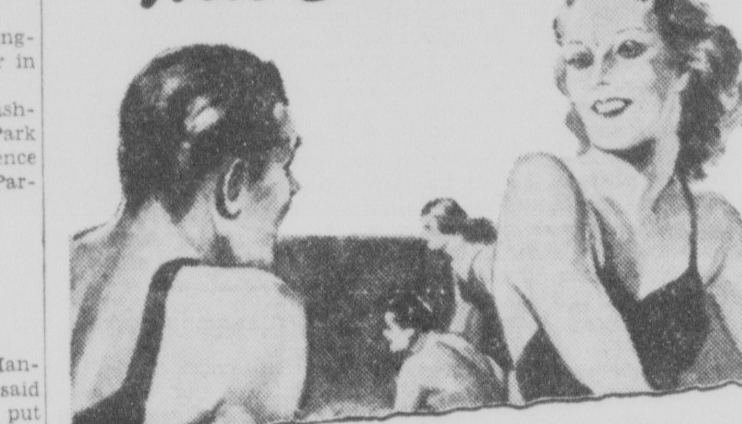

"It's shocking," say lovely women of today!

They prevent it, by using Arrid to safely check perspiration. Arrid keeps underarms dry, odorless, 1 to 3 days. No perspiration, no decay, no odor.

Girl Scouts Make Preparations For Annual Camp at Pavia, Pa.

Next week local Girl Scouts will turn back the pages of history to the time of the French and Indian war, for Camp Calcuttue, the old Indian name for Cumberland, will open at Pavia, Penna., on the fourteenth, for the first of the two one-week periods. Camp will be again divided into the five units: Indian, Plantation, Fur Traders, Red Coats and Settlers, signifying the types of people who inhabited Cumberland at that time. The girls are located according to age and interest in these units.

An added feature this year will be definite instructions in taking and developing pictures, by Miss Jane Showacre. A dark room has been built in the Nature building. Camp activities will again include arts and crafts, emphasizing sketching, woodcarving, leather work, and the dyeing and weaving of yarns, to carry out the spirit of the past. Sports and games include: tennis, volleyball, baseball, badminton, tether ball, ping pong and instruction in swimming, diving and life saving. Outdoor cooking also will be emphasized, with units four and five already completely equipped with dishes, silverware and cooking utensils. In the recent Girl Scout council sale $500 was set aside for a permanent camp, the balance was used to purchase permanent equipment to be added to year by year, until a complete camp can be outfitted. The equipment at Camp Calcuttue now is jointly owned by the Girl Scouts of Johnstown, Penna., Altoona, Penna., and Cumberland.

As the camp can only accommodate 120 girls, and seventy-six are already registered for the first week and sixty-four for the second, those desiring to go are asked to register as soon as possible, at Girl Scout headquarters, 76 Greene street.

The staff will leave here on Thursday, for a three-day pre-camp training course, before the girls arrive on the fourteenth. Any one who desires transportation to camp must call headquarters before the tenth to make reservations.

The staff includes: Mrs. Evangeline Twigg Coulehan, nurse; Miss Pauline Fisher, counselor in charge of woodlore, assisted by Miss Joan Kimmel, of Keyser; Miss Dorothy McCrackin, of Frostburg, and Miss Edna Elliott, of Lonaconing, are the camp craft counselors; Miss Elizabeth Wilton Jenkins, of Frostburg, Miss Helen Porter, of Lonaconing, and Miss Jane Showacre, of Cumberland, are counselors of arts and crafts; Miss Harriett Brode, of Frostburg, and Mrs. Mabel S. Riddle, of Spencer, W. Va., are counselors for dramatics and story telling; Mrs. Peter William Smith, of Cumberland, is unit leader; Miss Gretchen Reighard and Miss Ann Smith are in charge of swimming; Miss Marie Hardesty, of Reistertown, will be dietitian, and will arrive here today to arrange

Miss Kathleen Edna May, daughter of Mrs. Victor A. May, 404 1/2 North Center street, and Vincent Paul Miller, of Mt. Savage, were married Saturday morning at an 8 o'clock Nuptial High Mass, in St. Patrick's Catholic church, North Center street, by the Reverend Francis McKeown.

The altar was decorated with snapdragons and gladioli. Miss Jane Shaw sang the Ave Maria, accompanied by Miss Velma Coffey.

Miss Jane Bell was maid of honor, Francis Mulligan, of Mt. Savage, was best man.

The bride wore a gown of white lace on princess lines, with short sleeves and train, a coronet of orange blossoms held the veil, and she carried a bouquet of bride's roses, orchids and babybreath.

Miss Bell wore an aqua-marine French lace gown, with a shoulder length veil falling from a coronet of pink rose buds, and carried pink roses and babybreath.

Mrs. Miller attended Catholic Girls Central High school.

Mr. Miller attended St. Patrick's school, Mt. Savage, and was graduated from La Salle Institute, this city. He is employed by the Equitable Life Insurance company.

A wedding breakfast was served following the ceremony, at the Golden Gate Tea room, South Center street, to relatives and friends.

Following a wedding trip to Philadelphia and Atlantic City, Mr. and Mrs. Miller will be at home at 404 1/2 North Center street.

To Honor Miss Woodring

Miss Grace Woodring will be honor guest at a bridge luncheon to be given by Mrs. R. E. L. Bowie, at 1 o'clock tomorrow at her home, 622 Washington street.

Miss Woodring is visiting her brother-in-law and sister the Reverend and Mrs. William A. Eisenberger, 222 Washington street.

Girls Attend Camp

One hundred and three Girl Scouts and twelve non-scouts attended Girl Scout Day camp four days last week on Haystack mountain. The campers arrived at 9 o'clock in the morning, and as the camp set-up is exactly like the established camp, in five units, Indian, Plantation, Fur trade, Red Coats and Settlers, each having their own program and cooking their dinner out of doors, they were kept busy until time to go home at four o'clock.

Except that they did not sleep out of doors this gave the girls an idea of what real outdoor living is like.

Wed in Baltimore

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Isner announce the marriage of their daughter, Vera Wilma, to Lawrence W. Ward, son of the late Lawrence Snyder Ward, which took place at a Nuptial Mass yesterday morning in St. Brendan's Catholic church, Elkins, W. Va., the Very Reverend Paul D. Othling officiating.

Miss Naomi Isner, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, Marilyn Brown was flower girl and James

Mr. and Mrs. Ward are both graduates of Elkins high school. Mrs. Ward has been employed with G. C. Murphy company, in Elkins. Mr. Ward is employed at the Celanese corporation.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the Oak Grove Tea room, after which Mr. and Mrs. Ward left for a wedding trip to New York city. They will reside in Cumberland upon their return from New York.

Marriage Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Shockey, of the Shockey, hotel, Berlin, Penna., announce the marriage of their daughter, Anna Catherine to Edward Francis Reed, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Reed, Hilltop drive, July the fourth, at St. Patrick's rectory, North Center street, by the Reverend Francis J. McKeown.

Miss Regina Pelton and James Reed were the attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. Reed are now visiting in Wildwood, N. J.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Turner, 640 Lincoln street, announce the engagement of their daughter, Evelyn Rebecca, to Lewayne Andrew Wallizer, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. M. Wallizer, 638 Lincoln street. The wedding will be about the first of August.

Hold Picnic at Park

A picnic Saturday at Constitution Park closed the St. Mary's Religious Vocation School, which has been conducted the past two weeks for Catholic children who have been attending public school.

Members of the school and the teachers attended Mass at 8 o'clock and received Holy Communion. A breakfast in honor of seven first communicants in the class was held in the church hall following Mass.

St. Mary's Winners

Mrs. Thomas Rowley, Mrs. George Hollar, Miss Catherine King, Augustine L. Will, Joseph Weber and George Bennett received the set back awards at the weekly card party held Friday evening in the St. Mary's church hall, Oldtown road, for the benefit of the church, and sponsored by Sodality Band No. 7. In five hundred awards were won by Mrs. J. S. Minke, Mrs. George Sommerkamp, Mrs. E. Kaylor, C. H. Clark, Frank Perkins, and Peter Decker, Roger Pisaneschi and I. H. Bane were winners at bridge.

Miss Compton To Preside

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

READING THE LEAD

WHEN NO suit bidding has influenced the matter, an opening honor lead against a No Trump contract proclaims possession usually of what students call an "honor combination." In this situation that means the possession of at least three of the highest six cards of the suit, at least two of which are "touching honors." The conventional lead is from the touching honors. It is the top of the touchers, except in the case of ace-king, when the king is chosen. The principal value of such leads comes from the ability of a good partner to read the holding of both the leader and the declarer much more accurately than could be done with a fourth-best lead.

North	East
♠ A 8 5	♠ 10 4 3
♥ A 6 2	♥ 9 8 6
♦ Q J 7 6	♦ 10 5 4
♣ 10 7 4	♣ 9 6 4 2

If South bid 1-No Trump, North 3-No Trumps and you have the East hand shown, study of an honor lead, in conjunction with your own holding and the North dummy, can be extremely informative.

A lead of the spade Q makes it clear your partner also has the J, has not the K, and possesses one other "honor combination" card, which can't be anything but the 9. So declarer has the K with one or two guards.

The heart J lead proclaims possession of the 10 and another "honor combination" card, not the Q, so it is positively the K. Declarer would surely have exactly three to the Q.

Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The diamond K lead advertises clearly that the declarer has three little cards, with no stopper, your partner holding A-K-9 and a little one.

The club Q shows also the J and A, so declarer has the K guarded once or twice, probably the latter.

There is just one standard "honor combination" lead which reaches lower into the deck than the 9. That is the J-10-8 combination, from which the J is led.

Note that A-Q-10, A-Q-9, A-J-9 and K-J-9 have no touching honors, therefore are not adapted to an honor lead. Since a fourth best from those conventionally denies three "honor combinations" cards, including touchers, it helps you to read a fourth-best lead more accurately. Also, with the hands shown, lead of the spade J, heart 10 or club J, not being in natural sequences, must be a short suit lead, easily readable to you.

What principle operates to make this hand work better with North playing at spades than South playing at No Trumps?

Garner's Name To Be Presented

WASHINGTON, July 7. (AP)—Managers for Vice President Garner said that his name would be put before the Democratic convention for the presidential nomination.

Garner himself will not attend the convention, but his managers, E. B. Germany and Mrs. Clara Driscoll, said in a statement:

"Mr. Garner's name will be presented at the Chicago convention. Texas' sixty-four votes are instructed for him and he will receive substantial support from many other states."

Fill or Slim For a "Figger" Trim

By HELEN FOLLETT

LADY FASHION is a good trainer. She snaps the whip and the sisters go dancing round the beauty ring. She has ordained that the pretty ones have normal figures, with trim waist lines and hips that are not hippy, if you know what we mean. In order to qualify, even the lazy ones are doing their exercises.

Skinny slims must fill out, femmes who are built like cream puffs must shuffle off excess upholstery. Emaciation, when not caused by ill health, is the result of wrong eating habits, too many pickles, too much lettuce, not enough good food containing all the varied elements. A quart of milk a day, rich with cream, will bring good reports from the bath room scales.

Slow Traffic

Overweight is a menace to health, interferes with exercise, delegates the weighty one to the slow traffic lane. It is overcome by cutting down on fats, sweets and starches. Simple as can be.

Talk about the smaller waist-line has led women to look after their corseting, to choose correct foundation garments. It has also inspired them to hold in their tummys muscles, a habit that strengthens fibers and reduces measurements.

Now that ears are out in the world to be observed by every eye, don't let your's be poor little orphans. When you put on your make up, don't pass them by. How them another coat of powder. Powder back of your ears, especially if you are wearing a chignon—curls tied or anchored at the nape line.

"Overweight is a menace to health."

Miss Mary E. Matheney's Engagement To G. Morgan Smith Is Announced

Mrs. Harry W. Matheney, Brad-dock road, announces the engagement of her daughter, Mary Elizabeth, to G. Morgan Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Smith, Pulaski street.

Miss Matheney, who is the daughter of the late Harry W. Matheney, former county commissioner, was graduated from Allegany high school, this city, and received her A. B. degree at Hood college, Frederick. She is a member of the faculty of Cresaptown Junior high school.

Mr. Smith was graduated from Allegany high school, and is associated with the Peoples bank.

The wedding will take place later in the season.

To Attend Picnic

Miss Helen Forman, of Baltimore, will attend the annual picnic of the Baltimore and Ohio Women's Co-operative club, to be held tomorrow, at the cottage of Mrs. George Barnard, Millensons mill on the South Branch of the Potomac. Busses will leave Central Y. M. C.

Honored with Showers

Among the recent parties honoring Mrs. Vincent Miller, who began her marriage Saturday was Miss Kathleen Edna May, was a miscellaneous shower, given last week at Miss Jane Bell, at her home 52 Beall street. Miss Bell was Mrs. Miller's maid of honor. Games were played and refreshments served.

Miss Madelyn Dyche and Miss Evelyn Sheetz were hostesses at a re-nuptial miscellaneous shower, also in honor of Mrs. Miller. The party which was a surprise to the bride, was given at the home of Miss Dyche, 513 Maryland avenue.

Why Good Grooming requires keeping DARK ARCS DRY

If you still are tolerating perspiration under the arms, just listen to facts about hygiene in these dark arcs that any doctor can give you:

It's unpleasant! That repellent under-arm odor signals decay! That perspiration which damages gowns is decomposed!

Because the dark arcs are closed to purifying air and light, perspiration decays before it evaporates. Perspiration, carrying cast off body wastes, pours out on the skin, mingling with dead skin scales, and micro-organisms. Decay begins. Acids form. Fungus may grow and bacteria multiply. Rank odors appear.

"It's shocking," say lovely women of today!

They prevent it, by using Arrid to safely check perspiration. Arrid keeps underarms dry, odorless, 1 to 3 days. No perspiration, no decay, no odor.

Arrid, which safely checks perspiration, is a pure, white, greaseless cream. Harmless to skin and fabrics. Use it any time, after shaving, as you dress . . . 10c, 35c, 50c at stores which sell toilet goods.

More than 25 MILLION tins of Arrid have been sold.

DeMille's Radio Theater Will End Series Tonight

Will Present Comedy of Family Life with Helen Hayes

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor
NEW YORK, July 7.—Cecil B. DeMille's Radio Theater bids goodbye to its CBS audience Monday night for another summer. In doing so it is presenting Helen Hayes in "To the Ladies," a comedy of family life by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly. The program series at 8 is due to resume after two months on September 9.

Pearson and Allen Series
As the summer replacement for Dr. Harry Hagen's True or False the WJZ-NBC time at 7:30 is to be devoted to comment on world and domestic developments by Drew Pearson and Robert Allen. It will be their second network series, their first being on MBS last winter.

Finalists in the Chicago opera company's annual talent search, the second, will be presented in a special program for MBS at 9:30.

The Adventures of Reading, an afternoon feature of WJZ-NBC, is moving to a night spot at 9:30.

Lecture by Lerner
Prof. Max Lerner, author and professor of government at Williams college, is coming to the WABC-CBS lecture hall at 8 to discuss current world conditions.

The Short Story, WABC-CBS at 10 a. m., will be "Leave to Love," with Doris Dudley and Claudia Morgan co-starring.

The day's contribution, subject to change, to European developments, follows: NBC 7 a. m., 12:45, 11 p. m.; CBS 7 a. m., 5:45, 7:55, 9:30 p. m.; WEAF-NBC 6:15, WJZ-NBC 9:30; MBS 9.

Radishes for home use should not be seeded all at one time and in long rows. When they mature faster than they can be eaten, and are therefore left in the ground, they become tough and unpalatable. It is best to sow short rows of radishes in the home garden and at appropriate intervals to have a continuous supply in fresh and tender condition.

White radishes have come into popularity and are now the wanted varieties. The long types of radishes shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph are also gaining in popularity. White Icicle is an exceptionally fine early variety. White Strassburg is also excellent for summer use since it remains firm and brittle longer than most other varieties. For late summer and fall, Giant Stuttgart is most desirable.

Winter radishes can be stored just like any other root-crop. They are somewhat sharper in flavor after storage, but can be eaten raw.

Summer Program For Children Is Important

Youngsters Need Nerve Saver after Finishing Long School Term

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.
Most families will be at home all summer. Since school let out the mother may have been under increased nervous strain because the children are home all day and every day. In many homes there are more irritations during vacation, more quarreling among the children, more hours of noise and commotion.

Also there may be more strain on the nerves of the children; more strain on the pre-school child who used to be left at home while his older brother or sister went to school; even more strain on the child who had been going to school.

For many, if not for most children, the regularity of going to school and the variety of the day's experience afford good emotional outlets.

On the other hand, release from school can have a very relaxing effect on the school child in the well-ordered home.

Plan Summer Program

Let me urge you, my fellow parent, to work out a program with the children and for the children during the summer. Let your children share in arriving at this program. Then they will be the more ready to abide by it. Besides, that family atmosphere is most wholesome in which all members feel they have a part.

Of course, human nature is such that children won't always, not even generally, choose to assign themselves regular jobs which mean hard work and self-denial. Often the parents will have to assign these responsibilities and employ some coercion to guarantee their fulfillment. No use to fool ourselves that all these jobs can be made attractive by clever motivation; just see that they are done. Even then, the assignment should appear to the child more just and reasonable if he felt free to talk with his parents beforehand about its nature and purpose.

Each child over five or six should have some definite daily responsibilities during the summer, which he can't escape, no matter how many mounds there are. In the average home (which has no maid) the child or children should have a definite share in the regular cares of the house. If there are two or more children over ten or twelve (boys or girls), much of the house work can be done by these children, the mother supervising calmly and having abundant time for relaxation and recreation.

Get Done Early

Let the main house chores be done right after breakfast, by opportunity, perhaps, for a free hour or so in the morning and two or three free hours in the afternoon. A quiet period of about two hours early in the afternoon is very desirable. A good time then to sleep, lull or read. I wish children would read more during the summer, and that more of them and their parents would go to the public library.

Some of the school-age children should take music lessons and do regular practice during the summer.

Diet Is Seen As Vital Help In Stone Cases

Deficiency of Vitamin A Is Said To Be Harmful to Patients

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
"Is there any method of dissolving kidney stones and gallstones without an operation?"

This age-old inquiry, which is repeated by thousands of human beings a year, has always heretofore been answered by doctors with a contemptuous "No." Lately, however, there seems to be a change of mind taking place.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The relations of diet to kidney stones is very suggestive. Certain geographical areas have long been known as stone areas — lower Egypt, India and in this country Southern Florida and Southern California. The tendency in these regions is to eat a vegetable diet and to spare meats and fats, cutting out many vitamins. Higgins has produced stones in the kidneys experimentally in rats on a diet deficient in Vitamin A.

Statistics Show Progress

In countries where education in nutrition has received attention, it can be shown statistically that there is a marked reduction in the incidence of bladder stones. The figures of Thompson in England for the last two decades of the nineteenth century, as contrasted with those of July from 1915 to 1931 show that there was only a fourth as many cases seen in the later periods. Desnos and Minet have shown the same thing in France. In Russia, on the contrary, where standards of living are low, the incidence of bladder stone in children is still high.

Twenty-one patients are reported from a large American clinic, who had "complete solution" of their kidney stones after being put on a course of treatment which included clearing up any infection in the kidneys, and maintaining an acid-ash diet with a high Vitamin A content. The diet prescribed for those who have had surgical removal of stones has prevented recurrence. The acid-ash diet prevents the precipitation in the kidney pelvis of alkaline salts from which stones are formed. An acid-ash diet contains bread, corn, eggs, fish, meat, oatmeal and prunes.

The underweight person is thin for the simple reason that he does not know the meaning of the word appetite. He has to work just as hard to eat without an appetite as the overweight has to work not to eat with an appetite. Note that these vacation diets for underweight begin with an appetizer — fruit or thin soup, which here has its place in the dietary if anywhere.

Breakfast: Grapefruit; oatmeal with cream and sugar; hot biscuits with honey and butter; glass milk 1/2 cream.

Mid-morning: Cottage cheese; toast.

Lunch: Bouillon; creamed chicken on toast; endive salad with French dressing; chocolate custard with whipped cream; 2 whole wheat muffins with butter; glass milk.

Mid-afternoon: Glass 1/2 milk and 1/2 cream.

Dinner: Two poached eggs on mashed potatoes; buttered lima beans; lettuce salad with dressing; entire wheat bread with butter; apple tart; coffee with cream.

Evening: Eggnog.

Approximate value—4,000 calories.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp to Dr. Logan Clendening, King Features Syndicate Inc., East Forty-fifth Street, New York, N. Romantic Comedy Is Feature at Liberty

Irene Dunne and Cary Grant, who made their first co-starring appearance in "The Awful Truth," merge their talents for the sophisticated romantic marital comedy, "My Favorite Wife," now showing at the New Liberty theater.

With roles hand-tailored to their abilities by Bella and Samuel Speck, Miss Dunne and Grant are cast as a unique couple—a wife supposedly shipwrecked in a scientific expedition she joined seven years ago, and a husband who capitalized the Enoch Arden precedent and re-marries.

Surprisingly, Irene is rescued and returns unannounced on the same day that Cary and his bride leave on their honeymoon. But Irene, still in love with Cary, launches a campaign of interception which turns the bride into a semi-manic. The complications mount as Cary learns that Irene was alone on that desert isle with another man—a handsome, two-fisted, he-man—who wants to marry Irene!

Supporting talent is supplied by Randolph Scott as Miss Dunne's island companion and Gail Patrick as the second wife.

Two Features Are Offered at Garden

"The Story of Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet," is now at the Garden. Months before a camera turned the director began his research into the life of the rebel genius of science. When he was ready to go into production, Edward G. Robinson, as Dr. Paul Ehrlich, had to be able to jot down complex chemical equations with the ease and speed that number, all in the name of good clean fun.

But he is saying "never again" to a routine he followed in Hal Roach's new Laurel and Hardy comedy, "Saps at Sea," which is showing at the Maryland theater starting today.

In that picture, Stan and Ollie, who play the roles of testers in a horn factory suffering from nervous breakdowns, decided to recuperate on an old boat. An escaped convict, who broke out of jail because he didn't like the food, invades their retreat and demands that Laurel and Hardy cook a meal for him.

With no supplies on hand, the comedians concoct a mess they hope will lay him low. For spaghetti, they cut up string. Instead of meatballs, they throw in bits of sponge. A lamp-wick for bacon, red paint, kerosene and grated soap, and they are ready to serve. But the convict is suspicious, and makes Stan taste it first.

Two Features Are Offered at Embassy

Physical action is outstanding in "Northwest Passage," which opened yesterday at the Embassy theater. Major Rogers is said to be Spencer Tracy's most virile role and the same prediction is made for Walter Brennan for his Hunk Mariner role. Robert Young plays the part of Langdon Towne.

The second feature is "I Demand Payment," with Jack La Rue, Betty Burgess and Lloyd Hughes in the leading roles.

Detroit Trails Leads in American League

Rowe Turns Back Browns; Indians Lose to Chicago

Schoolboy Holds St. Louis to Five Hits for 5-2 Victory

Bob Feller Blows Up in Ninth in Duel with Ted Lyons

DETROIT, July 7 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers wrested the American League lead from the Cleveland Indians for the second time this season today when they conquered the St. Louis Browns, their favorite opponents, 5 to 2, while the Tribesmen were falling before the Chicago White Sox.

Lynwood Rowe held the Browns to five hits in gaining his sixth victory of the year. Rowe was lifted in the ninth when Roy Cullenbine hit a homer and Chet Laabs doubled, Alton Benton coming in to check the rally.

The Tigers took advantage of every opportunity, scoring twice off Bob Harris in the first inning on a walk to Charley Gehring, singles by Hank Greenberg and Rudy York and a double by Ervin (Pete) Fox.

In the third the Tigers picked up two more tallies on singles by Gehring and Fox and two St. Louis misplays.

River City Club Ten Downs Parsons Barbers

PARSONS, W. Va., July 7.—In the Industrial Softball League, the River City Club, strongest team in the local league, defeated the Parsons Barbers by a score of 4-3, Friday evening at the Pulp Mill Bottom field. The line-up is as follows: River City Club—pitcher, Syrtian; catcher, Moorman; first base, Butcher; second base, Gilmore; third base, Harold Parsons; right field, Jones; left field, Paugh; center field, Henry; short field, Alton Parsons; and short stop, Haines. Barbers—pitcher, Strawderman; catcher, M. Harsh; first base, Cox; second base, W. Simmons; third base, Barr; right field, Rosenaur; left field, Wolf; center field, Bible; short field, R. Riley; and short stop, Dugman. The Barbers substituted C. Simmons for Rosenaur at right field.

The softball schedule for the following week is as follows: Monday, River City vs Hill's Cafe; Tuesday, Barbers vs Hill's Cafe; Wednesday, River City vs Feed Store; Thursday, Barbers vs Tannery; and Friday, Tannery vs Feed Store.

Lynwood Rowe held the Browns to five hits in gaining his sixth victory of the year. Rowe was lifted in the ninth when Roy Cullenbine hit a homer and Chet Laabs doubled, Alton Benton coming in to check the rally.

The Tigers took advantage of every opportunity, scoring twice off Bob Harris in the first inning on a walk to Charley Gehring, singles by Hank Greenberg and Rudy York and a double by Ervin (Pete) Fox.

In the third the Tigers picked up two more tallies on singles by Gehring and Fox and two St. Louis misplays.

Athletics Divide Two with Yankees To Pace in Series

Largest Crowd of Year at Double-Header in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, July 7 (AP)—The Athletics made it three out of four in their current series with the New York Yankees by splitting a double-header today before Philadelphia's largest baseball crowd of the season—37,129 fans.

The Yanks won the first game, 6 to 3, by scoring four runs in the first inning off rookie southpaw Parter Vaughan. The A's took the afterpiece, 10 to 5, behind Nelson Potter's six-hit pitching.

The A's out-hit the Yanks in each game, 12 to 6. In the opener, however, the New Yorkers bunched four of their six hits with an error, a hit batsman, a walk and a wild pitch to score four runs in the first inning. Bill Lillard and Frankie Hayes hit homers off Marvin Bremer while Bill Knickerbocker clouted one in the fourth off Vaughan.

Fire Chiefs Club To Hold Meeting Here Tomorrow

Fire-Fighting Heads To Elect Officers At Banquet Session

The annual convention of the Fire Chiefs Club of Maryland, composed of heads of volunteer and paid fire companies in the state, will open here tomorrow.

Delegates will assemble at the Fort Cumberland hotel, where a banquet will be held at 7 p. m. Election of officers will follow.

During the banquet, wives and friends of the delegates will be entertained at the All Ghan Shrine Country Club by Brooke Whiting, president of the Queen City Brewing Company.

Whiting will be host to the men at the brewery Wednesday morning, while the women will be the guests of the Celanese Corporation at its plant here.

New Jersey Man Wins Rifle Championship

CAMP RITCHIE, Md., July 7. (P)—William Schweitzer of Hillsdale, N. J., won the Eastern regional small bore rifle championship today with an eight-match aggregate score of 3,178.

Ransford Trykes of Madison, N. J., finished a close second with 3,170 and John A. Bare of Shillington, Pa., was third with 3,167.

The final day of the tournament saw two new world records set. H. O. Hilderton of Fort Meade, Md., a member of the U. S. Infantry pistol team, won the individual timed fire 45 calibre match, scoring 198 out of a possible 200 to better the record held for four years by Harry Reeves of the Detroit police.

Al Hemming, Detroit policeman, set the other record by shooting a 200 over the national match course with a 45 calibre weapon. The title previously was held by Mark L. Wheeler of the Los Angeles police, who was not at this meet.

With the title, Schweitzer won a free trip to the national rifle and pistol matches at Camp Perry, O., in September. A second trip awarded to the small bore rifle victor in the lower classifications went to Samuel Kurtz of Lebanon, Pa., who posted 3,161 for the eight matches, eleven points ahead of Charles N. Herman of New Tripoli, Pa. O. E. Thiessen of Hialeah, Md., was third.

Youth on Bicycle Hit By Uncle's Car

A 16-year-old Flintstone youth was painfully injured Saturday night when an automobile driven by his uncle struck the bicycle he was riding near home.

Elbin Bucy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bucy, suffered a fractured left leg and lacerations about the face in the crash. He was admitted to Allegheny hospital at 9 p. m.

Hospital attendants said Paul Appold, of Flintstone, the youth's uncle, was driver of the car involved.

State Police said Appold reported the accident and told them that he was the youth's uncle. No charges were placed against him.

Young Bucy was reported "fairly good" last night.

Joseph Diehl, 19, of 145 North Mechanic street, had the end of the third finger on his right hand mangled Saturday night when it was caught in a meat grinder at the Chicago Market, where he is employed. He was treated at Allegheny hospital and discharged.

Deaths

Gerard B. Free

Gerard B. Free, of RFD 2, Baltimore Pike, died Saturday night at his home. He was 75.

Last rites for Mrs. Nellie V. Smith, 60, wife of James S. Smith, of 416 Grand avenue, who died Thursday, were conducted yesterday afternoon at the home. The Rev. E. P. Heinze and the Rev. George E. Baughman officiated. Burial was in Hillcrest cemetery.

Pallbearers were Paul Sidney, Arthur Leroy, Howard, Chester and Earl Zarger.

Rev. John E. Graham Dies In Baltimore Hospital

BALTIMORE, July 7. (P)—The Rev. John E. Graham, chaplain of St. Vincent's Female Orphanage, Washington, died today at St. Joseph's hospital from a heart attack. He was 68.

Father Graham, a Baltimorean, served in a number of parishes here before going to Washington. He entered the hospital last week for a rest.

The Kiwanis club's Sunshine camp completed its first week yesterday and the thirty boys who attended had a week replete with games, story telling and various sports.

State police, headed by Corporal H. F. Schultheis, held safety drills on Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday. On Wednesday, the Red Cross, with Karl G. Perry in charge, gave the boys a few pointers on first-aid.

Daily inspection is held each morning, and every boy must look presentable and have his bed made. There is a story-telling hour each evening around the camp fire, with Mrs. Louise Coulehan in charge.

The campers have been divided into four groups for the sporting events and other activities of a competitive nature.

David's team is composed of Bill Gray, Peter Perrin, Howard Peterson, Tom Hanekamp, Carl Lewis, Donald Albertus, Robert Young and Thomas Metz. On Chappie's team are Richard Thomas, Ronald Davis, Robert Lanham, Billy Perrin, Harry Stewart, Allan Metz, and John Guillier. Boys on George's team are Harold Hipsley, Frank Bosley, Delbert Nelson, Melvin Bowman, Benny Hartley, Buddy Keith, William Laman and John Vavin. On Ralph's squad are Harold Dilbert, Don Payne, Joseph Grimm, Donald Carns, Billy Miller, Richard Davis, James Stewart and Billy Atkinson.

The camp staff is composed of Joseph W. Young, headmaster, who will remain there for the entire summer; Mrs. Emily Glover, assisted by Mrs. Joseph Young, house-mother. David Weiss, Charles D. Walton, Jr., Harold Hipsley and Ralph Roth, counselors.

Joseph Mongold's Announce Program For Mt. Lake Park To Broken Neck Missions School

Body of Hardy County Man Is Found in Woods by Searching Party

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., July 7.—The body of Joseph "Bud" Mongold, 66, was found Friday night on Middle Mountain after he had been missing since Tuesday. Mongold, living alone at his home up Jenkins Hollow near Dugout and when neighbors missed him they organized a searching party which culminated in finding the body late Friday evening.

Prosecuting Attorney Ralph J. Bean and Corporal H. R. Shields, of the State police, were notified as foul play was suspected. The party accompanied by Trooper O. G. Webley and Corporal Dr. O. V. Brooks had difficulty in locating the body the second time late Friday night as the recent rains had washed leaves and debris around him, partially hiding the body.

Examination disclosed no evidences of foul play and no inquest was held. Death was attributed to a broken neck caused by a fall. Mongold's watch and a few dollars were found on him.

The accident occurred about a quarter of a mile from Mongold's home. He was buried Saturday morning. Surviving are three sons and two daughters.

New Jersey Man Wins Rifle Championship

CAMP RITCHIE, Md., July 7. (P)—William Schweitzer of Hillsdale, N. J., won the Eastern regional small bore rifle championship today with an eight-match aggregate score of 3,178.

Ransford Triggs of Madison, N. J., finished a close second with 3,170 and John A. Bare of Shillington, Pa., was third with 3,167.

The final day of the tournament saw two new world records set. H. O. Hilderton of Fort Meade, Md., a member of the U. S. Infantry pistol team, won the individual timed fire 45 caliber match, scoring 198 out of a possible 200 to better the record held for four years by Harry Reeves of the Detroit police.

At Hemming, Detroit policeman, set the other record by shooting a 300 over the national match course with a 45 caliber weapon. The title previously was held by Mark L. Wheeler of the Los Angeles police, who was not at this meet.

With the title, Schweitzer won a free trip to the national rifle and pistol matches at Camp Perry, O., in September. A second trip awarded to the small bore rifle victor in the lower classifications went to Samuel Kurtz of Lebanon, Pa., who posted 3,161 for the eight matches, eleven points ahead of Charles N. Herman of New Tripoli, Pa. O. E. Thiesen of Halesboro, Md., was third.

Youth on Bicycle Hit By Uncle's Car

A 16-year-old Flintstone youth was painfully injured Saturday night when an automobile driven by his uncle struck the bicycle he was riding near home.

Elbin Bucy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bucy, suffered a fractured left leg and lacerations about the face in the crash. He was admitted to Allegheny hospital at 9 p. m.

Hospital attendants said Paul Appold, of Flintstone, the youth's uncle, was driver of the car involved.

State Police said Appold reported the accident and told them that he was the youth's uncle. No charges were placed against him.

Young Bucy was reported "fairly good" last night.

Joseph Diehl, 19, of 145 North Mechanic street, had the end of the third finger on his right hand mangled Saturday night when it was caught in a meat grinder at the Chicago Market, where he is employed. He was treated at Allegheny hospital and discharged.

Rev. John E. Graham Dies In Baltimore Hospital
BALTIMORE, July 7. (P)—The Rev. John E. Graham, chaplain of St. Vincent's Female Orphanage, Washington, died today at St. Joseph's hospital from a heart attack. He was 68.

The Kiwanis club's Sunshine camp completed its first week yesterday and the thirty boys who attended had a week replete with games, story telling and various sports.

State police, headed by Corporal H. F. Schultheis, held safety drills on Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday. On Wednesday, the Red Cross, with Karl G. Perry in charge, gave the boys a few pointers on first-aid.

Daily inspection is held each morning, and every boy must look presentable and have his bed made. There is a story-telling hour each evening around the camp fire, with Mrs. Louise Coulehan in charge.

The campers have been divided into four groups for the sporting events and other activities of a competitive nature.

David's team is composed of Bill Gray, Peter Perrin, Howard Peterson, Tom Hanekamp, Carl Lewis, Donald Albertus, Robert Young and Thomas Metz. On Chappie's team are Richard Thomas, Ronald Davis, Robert Lanham, Billy Perrin, Harry Stewart, Allan Metz, and John Guiltier. Boys on George's team are Harold Hipsley, Frank Bosley, Delbert Nelson, Melvin Bowman, Benny Hartley, Buddy Keith, William Laman and John Vavin. On Ralph's team are Harold Dilbert, Don Payne, Joseph Grimm, Donald Carns, Billy Miller, Richard Davis, James Stewart and Billy Atkinson.

The camp staff is composed of Joseph W. Young, headmaster, who will remain there for the entire summer; Mrs. Emily Glover, assisted by Mrs. Joseph Young, house-mother; David Weiss, Charles D. Walton Jr., Harold Hipsley and Ralph Roth, councillors.

The accident occurred about a quarter of a mile from Mongold's home. He was buried Saturday morning. Surviving are three sons and two daughters.

Power Rate Reduced
Representatives of the Potomac Light and Power company met with the members of the Moorefield town council at their regular meeting and promised a rate reduction of fifteen dollars a month on the cost of the town's power consumption bringing the average down from ninety-five to eighty-five a month. Walter Kline, district manager, and Mr. Whitwell represented the power company.

The Moorefield Auto supply offered to furnish a drinking fountain for the corner at their store if the town would install the fountain and furnish the water. As this is a need long recognized by the citizens of the town, and the Woman's club tried to care for some time ago, the members of the council were glad to cooperate with the Auto Supply company.

An ordinance was proposed to make the town sergeant a health and sanitation officer. It will be his duty to inspect all streets, alleys, sidewalks, and other municipally owned property to see that it is kept clean. He will also inspect private properties within the corporation and, after giving due notice to the owners to remedy the condition should he find unsanitary conditions, he will be empowered to see that the unsanitary conditions are removed and the property owner pays for the removal. He is responsible for the clearing up of stagnant pools or other breeding places of disease-bearing insects.

The ordinance also requires that trash and garbage must be burned in a wire or metal container to keep it from being scattered.

Fourth of July Picnic
Honoring Miss Mary McCormick of Arlington, Mass., guest of Miss Molly Pownall and Miss Mary McDowell, Washington, guest of Miss Sherrard Kuykendall, thirty-five young people held a picnic at Lost River State park on July 4. Those present were the Misses Mary McCormick, Mary McDowell, Ella Belle Welton, Susie Welton, Eleanor Welton, Elizabeth Williams, Mary Frost Williams, Betty Lee Williams, Jean Mattox, Waynesboro, Va., Mollie Pownall, Betty Wise, Lee McNeill, Jere Lloyd, Shreveport, La., Jean McNeill, Betty Hack, Kernstown, Va., Nellie Ours, Rachael Webley, Sherrard Kuykendall, Betty Heltzel, Ellen Harwood and Philip Wise, Renick McNeill, John McNeill, Bob McNeill, Tom Pownall, Lawrence Thrush, George Leatherman, June Miley, Carl Lenhart, Richard Stell, June Evans, Henry Egger, Ronald Love, Harold Dodd and Sauffley Fiddle.

Applicants who have been selected for the day shift of training will be notified today.

Alcoholic Beverage Establishments Show Decline Here
Allegheny county has twenty-three less retail alcoholic beverage outlets now than it did in October, 1939, according to a survey made by the Maryland Alcoholic Beverage Study Committee, Inc.

On October 1, 1939, there were 290 such establishments in the county. As of June 1, 1940, there were but 267—a decrease of nearly eight per cent.

The 267 Allegheny county outlets include 197 establishments selling beer, one selling beer and light wine and sixty-nine selling beer, wine and liquor.

In the state as a whole, there were 5,327 outstanding licenses last month, compared to 5,847 as of October 1, 1939—a decrease of 520, or approximately nine per cent.

The committee describes the figures as showing "a very healthy trend which is largely due to the increased effort of the various enforcement agencies."

"Although no statistics are available, it is an accepted fact that a reasonable portion of the decrease included undesirable licensed establishments."

"The increased interest of the public and the unfavorable publicity caused by the existence of improper outlets should bring about a continuation of the downward trend until the major problems of enforcement have been reduced to a minimum. Improvement progresses only in accordance with expressed public demand."

Two Drivers Arrested
Two drivers were arrested on traffic charges over the week-end. They were Vigil L. Hartsock, 15 Heunbird street, and John D. Meunham, of Mt. Savage. Both are scheduled to be given a hearing this morning in Police court.

Shipley Rites Held
Thoburn L. Shipley, 47, of Oakland, died in Allegheny hospital, Cumberland, on Friday after an illness of four weeks. He was born in Baltimore June 6, 1893, a son of Mrs. Mary C. Shipley and the late Hyer L. Shipley.

He was a painter and glazier by trade but for the past two years had operated the East End Service Station here.

Mr. Shipley was a World War veteran, having enlisted in 1917 in the Maryland National Guard, later being attached to the 29th Division, Company K, at Anderson, Ala., from where he was discharged twenty-two months later.

He was a member of the Loyal Order of Moose, at Terra Alta, W. Va.

Surviving are his mother, Baltimore; his wife who was formerly Wilma DeWitt; an adopted daughter, Patricia; three sisters and one brother, Mrs. Carey Jameson, Mrs. Viola Witke, Mrs. Stella Hopkins, all of Baltimore; and Clyde Shipley, of Mt. Lake Park.

Services were conducted this afternoon at 4:30 from his brother's home at the Park, in charge of Rev. A. B. Leamer, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church. Interment was in the Oakland cemetery.

Brief Mention
Funeral services were conducted this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock for Mrs. Audrey Riley, 29, who died Friday morning after an illness of ten weeks. Services were in charge of Rev. Garrett Evans, pastor of the Methodist church at Mt. Lake Park, and were held at the White Church, about six miles southeast of Oakland. Interment was in the White Church cemetery.

Mrs. Riley was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Fitzwater, of North Glade, near Swanton. Surviving are her husband, one child, Audrey, Jr., her parents, two brothers and two sisters.

Services were held yesterday afternoon at the Crellin church for Mrs. Stella Jordan, wife of Luther Jordan, 56, who died July 3 of a heart attack. She was a former Cumberland resident, and a daughter of Mrs. Minnie Miller, of Cumberland. Surviving are her husband, mother, seven sisters and one brother. Interment was in the cemetery at Terra Alta, W. Va.

Jewelry Store Theft Remains Mystery
The theft of a wrist watch, valued at $35, early Friday morning from a display window at Marple's jewelry store, 228 North Centre street, remains a mystery today.

A half-brick, wrapped in part of a newspaper, was hurled through the insured window. The watch was taken, but none of the other valuable articles in the window were touched, police reported.

No clues were uncovered yesterday.

Man Gets 25 Days For Reckless Driving
Earl E. Slider, of Spring Gap, was sentenced to twenty-five days in the county jail Saturday in Trial Magistrate's court on a charge of reckless driving.

Slider, arrested Wednesday at Oldtown by State Trooper George J. Miller, was jailed in default of $25 fine and $145 costs.

Dean E. Smeal, of Clearfield, Pa., forfeited $10 bond in Police court when he failed to appear for trial on a charge of careless driving. Officers J. J. Condon and J. E. Kelley made the arrest.

Land Set Aside for Trolley Tracks To Be Used in Road-Widening Job

Work is scheduled to begin today on the widening of Louisiana avenue from Williams street to Kent avenue, using land which had been set aside many years ago for street cars.

A 24-foot roadway was built, and a plot along one side was left for the possible construction of a street car line. Since street cars no longer exist in Cumberland, city officials say the land can be used in the widening project, and it will be unnecessary to narrow sidewalks or front lawns.

The city will prepare the road bed and build the curb. Then the State Roads Commission will furnish the black-top surfacing. After the completion of the job, Route 51 will be changed to Louisiana avenue from Hill Top drive, which will afford a more direct route to Oldtown Road east.

The city will also eliminate the deep gutter on Williams street from Maryland avenue to Louisiana avenue and the state will black top this section. This street has been in a bad condition for some time.

Kent avenue, from Louisiana avenue to Memorial avenue, will also be widened to thirty feet. The city will do all this work, which will improve travel to Memorial hospital.

$30,000 Damages Asked for Fall
Damages totaling $30,000 for injuries resulting from a fall are asked of the L. Bernstein Furniture Company, Inc., in two suits docketed in Circuit court.

The complainants, represented by Attorney Paul M. Fletcher, are Mrs. Emma E. Twigg and her husband, R. Alva B. Twigg, of Williams road.

The suits charge that Mrs. Twigg was severely injured April 19 when she lost her footing in the store entrance as a result of allegedly defective flooring. She fell backward, the suit states, and suffered severe injuries to her head, hips and back. The bill of complaint filed in Mrs. Twigg's name asks $25,000 damages.

In addition, her husband seeks $5,000 damages, claiming he incurred heavy medical expenses as a result of his wife's injuries and also was deprived of her services.

Recovering from her injuries, Mrs. Twigg suffered a "relapse" Friday when, on her first day out of bed since the mishap, she fractured both arms while attempting to walk unassisted.

Two Cumberlanders On PTA Program
The annual summer conference of the Maryland Congress of Parent-Teacher Associations will be held this week at the University of Maryland, College Park.

President Lillian C. Compton, a vice president of the association, will preside at all sessions on Thursday and Mrs. Robert G. Doty, state chairman of publications, will appear on the program Tuesday and Friday mornings. Both are Cumberlanders.

Several representatives of the Allegheny County Council of the P. T. A. will attend the conference which opens today and closes Friday.

The session will take up the tentative program for the next state convention, which will be held in Frostburg.

Camera Club Will Hold 'Photo Outing' Tonight
The Cumberland Miniature Camera Club will hold a "photo outing" today at Edgar D. Growden's cottage on Hazen road, near Union Grove, Secretary Robert O. Slemmer announced last night.

The club's regular meeting will start at 6:30 p. m., and the monthly print competition for cash prizes will follow.

The club's forty best prints, taken last year, are now on exhibition at the Litz Camera Club, Litz, Pa. They will go to the Lombard Camera Club, of Lombard, Ill., next.

Members of the club are requested to take along their cameras and a supply of film and flash bulbs to the outing. A Wiener roast and a hamburger fry is on the program.

125 Thoroughbreds Arrive For Hagerstown Race Meet
HAGERSTOWN, Md., July 7. (P)—Approximately 125 thoroughbred horses, including Star Touch, holder of the track record for a mile and five-eighths at Delaware Park, were here today for the ten-day race meet of the Hagerstown Fair Association opening Tuesday.

About 600 horses are expected here from Delaware, Charles Town and Wheeling and western and New England points. General Manager Harold P. Bester said applications for more than 400 stalls were turned down.

Nearly 100 jockeys have filed applications. Top riders at Charles Town and Wheeling are expected to compete here.

Firemen Called
East Side firemen were called yesterday at 10:25 p. m., to the home of Andrew Martin, 638 Columbia avenue, to check a short circuit in a refrigerator. No damage was caused.

Young Robbers Surrender, 'Too Hungry To Go On'

Three youths wanted for a series of robberies in Homestead, Pa., walked into police headquarters here yesterday morning and gave themselves up because they were "too hungry to go on."

The trio, all of Homestead, surrendered to Desk Sgt. Bert B. Browne who notified Homestead authorities. They were booked at 11:30 a. m.

Sergeant Browne said the youths admitted robbing several stores in Homestead before hitch-hiking here and told him that they were "too hungry to go on." Their loot included cash, cigarettes and many other articles, he said.
